U.S. MAY BARTER FOR SILVER

CHANGE OF POLICY ADVOCATED

HELP FOR AGRICULTURE END IN VIEW

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

Washington, June 3.

Representative Martin Dies, Democrat of Texas, it was learned to-day, is planning to confer with President Roosevelt and the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, as soon as possible. The object of the conference will be to make an effort to obtain the immediate suspension of the United States silver purchasing policy and to substitute it with a plan of outright barter.

Mr. Dies has pointed out that at present the silver policy is of little apparent benefit to the agricultural export situation.

He has contended that if the United States purchased silver solely on a barter basis, the American farmers would dispose of from two to three million bales of cotton during the next seven or eight months.

Under his new plan, he said, cotton would be bartered at twelve cents a pound but the price of silver could be raised considerably above the present level, possibly to $1.20.

Mr. Dies said: "The present plan is not helping American agriculture, which would be the sole purpose of my Bill if it became the law of the United States. Our exports are dropping steadily, but if we purchase silver solely on a barter basis we should not only benefit the world silver situation but also bolster our export situation."

"I do not know how President Roosevelt or Mr. Morgenthau will react to my plan, but I am going to make every effort to obtain an opportunity for a trial."

NO BENEFITS

Representative John A. Martin, Democrat of Colorado, to-day said that he did not believe that additional purchases of silver would prove to be of any benefit to domestic producers.

He pointed out that the United States silver mines, particularly those in Colorado, produce complex ores due to the existing low price of lead and copper.

Producers of these ores, he said, are unable to realise sufficient money on the basis metals to justify the operations, despite the fact that the ores contain silver.

Also he said that he did not believe that the present silver policy had benefited the agricultural export situation materially.

NO COMMENT

Washington, June 3. Mr. Dies intends to propose to Mr. Morgenthau a drastic change in the Silver Purchase Act with a view to "halting the downward trend of American exports and removing the constant threat hanging over the cotton market."

Mr. Dies would let the Treasury suspend for a year all silver purchases in world markets, and instead buy silver at a certain fixed premium over the world price only from nations which agreed to purchase some of the surplus agricultural products of the United States.

Silver circles appear insufficiently interested in the idea even to comment.—Reuter.

NEW YORK PRICES

New York, June 3. Messrs. Handy and Harmon quoted silver here to-day at 73½ cents per ounce.

On the foreign exchange market the dollar eased against the major currencies.

On the New York Cotton Exchange prices closed seven to fourteen points lower. The market was extremely weak in distant deliveries despite a late recovery based on the Department of Agriculture official statement on the question of the legality of the A.A.A., which is not expected to prevent the government loan on the 1935 crop. Further there was the Johnson statement that the

NAVAL PARLEY OPENS

GERMAN DELEGATES IN LONDON

London, June 3.

The Anglo-German naval conversations opened this afternoon, when Herr Joachim von Ribbentrop, Special Commissioner for Disarmament Questions appointed by Chancellor Hitler to act for the German Government, saw the Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the Foreign Minister, Sir John Simon, and the First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell. However, on this occasion the German diplomat is not to talk of disarmament, but of the proposed increase of the German Navy.

The conversations will be opened formally by Sir John Simon at the Foreign Office to-morrow morning.

It is expected that the conversations will be completed by the end of the week.

REPLIES EXAMINED

London, June 3.

Replies of the German Government to inquiries made by the British Ambassador in Berlin for more precise information on several matters dealt with in Herr Hitler's recent speech, have now been received in London, and are receiving the close attention of the British Government. The German Government memorandum on the bearing of the recent Franco-Soviet agreement on Locarno Treaties is also being examined by appropriate Government departments.—British Wireless.

Fighting On Abyssinian Frontiers

MANY SLAIN IN TWO BORDER RAIDS

COMPLICATED SITUATION

Rome, June 3.

Just when the Italo-Abyssinian quarrel, arising out of months' old clashes on the Italian Somaliland frontier, seemed near to settlement, Ethiopian tribesmen have fought again with Italian outposts, thus seriously complicating the situation in which the League of Nations has tried to effect a settlement.

Thirty Italian subjects were killed in the Dankali region, Eritrea, on May 31, according to an official communique received here to-day, when an Italian and native police outpost was attacked by Abyssinians.

The raiders from the Abyssinian side of the border carried off some thousands of head of cattle.

MILITARY MEASURES

The military commander of the sector has taken the necessary measures to ensure the safety of Italian subjects.

A further serious incident is reported on the same day from a remote section of the Somaliland-Abyssinia frontier country, when twenty armed Abyssinians attacked an Italian outpost near Gublie.

It is understood that at least ten Abyssinians were killed in this second clash.—Reuter.

MANY CASUALTIES

Rome, June 3.

On the eve of a meeting of the Italo-Abyssinian Conciliation Committee, at Milan, another frontier incident has occurred in the region of the Uebisehehli River, some distance from Unalul, where the first frontier clash, which was the cause of the present crisis, occurred.

The casualties were rather heavy, and included Italian Somaliland inhabitants and Abyssinians, both killed and wounded.—Reuter.

KING LEADS PARADE

WILDLY CHEERED BY CROWDS IN MALL

London, June 3.

Dark clouds overhung the Horse Guards Parade to-day before the Trooping of the Colours, but a few minutes after His Majesty the King had taken his position, the sun poured out upon the brilliant scene.

Unequaled anywhere else in the world, this ceremony of the Trooping of the Colours, which never varies, was carried out to-day with a precise perfection. It lasted over an hour.

His Majesty took the salute.

But the greatest thrill of the day was to come when His Majesty led the pick of the British Army along the Mall, amidst the thunderous cheers of a mighty concourse of people.—Reuter.

Employment Improves

NOTICEABLE IN ALL MAIN INDUSTRIES

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1911. Received, June 4, 5.15 a.m.)

London, June 3.

Latest figures to be issued show that there has been a further improvement in employment since the middle of April. This is particularly noticeable in the principal industries, especially in buildings, public works, engineering, cotton, hosiery and the engineering distributive trades.

There has also been a large increase in temporary employment among Yorkshire and Midlands miners.

The unemployed on May 20 numbered 2,044,752, being an increase of 292 compared with April 15, but a decrease of 45,629 when compared with the same date last year.—Reuter Special.

OTHER FIGURES

London, June 3.

The Ministry of Labour estimates that on May 20 there were approximately 10,334,000 insured persons, aged 16 to 64, in employment in Britain. This was 14,000 more than at April 15, 1935, and 14,000 more than on May 14, 1934.

At the same date, the number of unemployed persons on the registers in Britain totalled 2,044,752 comprising 1,630,572 men, 65,120 boys, 293,662 women, and 55,898 girls.

The total was 292 more than on April 15, but 45,629 less than the year before. The number of boys and girls on the registers increased by 10,800 during the period under review, due to registration of juveniles who left school at Easter.—British Wireless.

Royal Empire Society Builds For Expansion

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1911. Received, May 4, 5.15 a.m.)

London, June 3.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales to-day laid the foundation-stone of the new building of the Royal Empire Society in Northumberland Avenue, which cost £250,000.

The Prince read a message from His Majesty the King, expressing the hope that the auspicious occasion would mark the opening of a new era of increasing prosperity.

Messages were also read from the Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the Dominions' Premiers and General Smuts.

The Prince of Wales, in the course of a speech, stressed the importance of the new building as a home for Overseas visitors, enabling Englishmen to return the abounding hospitality shown to Britons overseas. He also referred to the value of the quarter of a million volumes of the Society's library, which would be properly housed for the first time.

If it were true, as many thought, that the Empire was only at the beginning of its real mission to the world, said the Prince, then the part to be played by the Society in the future would be important. All would welcome the contribution which the Society would make to that understanding of the people which was nowhere so well exemplified as within the boundaries of the Empire.—Reuter Special.

Tientsin, June 4.

While no fresh development is evident in connection with the recent Japanese demarche in North China, the removal of the seat of the Hopei Provincial Government to Paoingfu is proceeding.

General Yu Hsueh-chung, Governor of Hopei Province, left for Paoingfu last evening to direct the accommodating of various Government departments in the new buildings.

A third train carrying records and archives and a batch of the Government staff left here for Paoingfu last evening.—Central News.

SHOW CONFIDENCE IN BOUISSON

NEW ECONOMIC PARLEY MAY BE CALLED

Paris, June 3.

The financial world is showing confidence in the Bouisson Government, which faces Parliament to-morrow afternoon.

The demand for Government issues at the last opening of the Bourse so heavily exceeded supplies that a quarter of an hour elapsed before prices could be quoted. Then 4½ and 3 per cent. Rentes rose over three points from the prices of May 31.

Thanks to the restoration of confidence, a large public loan is expected in the near future.

General currency stabilisation is the corner-stone of the policies of the Finance Minister, M. Caillaux. He is credited with the intention of shortly proposing the resumption of the London Economic Conference which adjourned in 1932.

"The recovery of international trade is in the forefront of my preoccupations," M. Caillaux told a newspaper conference. "Incidentally, it will singularly facilitate matters if the great currencies, other than francs, can shortly make stabilisation their common object."

The Finance Minister has already initiated certain reforms, including the decision to appoint two commissioners, one of which will consider reorganisation of the Stock Exchange and the other elaborate means for making expenditure correspond to revenue.

DRAIN ON GOLD

The recent drain on gold held by France has now ceased and an early reduction of the bank rate, which is now six per cent., is expected.

An official statement issued by the Ministry of Finance confirms that M. Caillaux favours international stabilisation on a basis of the present parity of the franc, but suggests that he is too preoccupied to deal with a stabilisation conference at present, as he is absorbed with balancing the Budget and maintaining the present rate of the franc.

The statement adds that M. Caillaux does not consider that he should take the initiative in calling a conference to discuss stabilisation.—Reuter.

Gold Clause Annulment

CANAL COMPANY NOT AFFECTED

CHAIRMAN'S STATEMENT

Paris, June 3.

The Suez Canal Company considers itself unaffected by the decree issued by the Egyptian Government on May 2, annulling the gold clause in international contracts, declared the Marquis de Vogue, presiding at the annual meeting of the company to-day.

He pointed out that transit dues can be collected in any currency the company may choose and the company would not hesitate to collect in a currency other than gold francs if it thinks fit.

Further, there was no gold clause in the contract for payment of dividends to shareholders and debenture holders. They were payable on an international franc basis, at a twentieth part of a gold louis.

The company, moreover, holds that the decree of May 2 has no retroactive effect on past payments.

The Marquis added that the company would like to add ship-owners by a reduction of tariffs, but until the position with regard to the Egyptian Government's decree was cleared up, the company could not see its way clear to the surrendering of any source of revenue.—Reuter.

ATLANTIC RECORD SMASHED

New York, June 3.

The giant French liner Normandie established a new record for a trans-Atlantic crossing on her maiden voyage. She passed Ambrose light-ship, at the entrance to New York harbour, at 10 o'clock this morning (Eastern time), covering the 3,192 miles from Southampton in 106 hours and 33 minutes, her average speed being 29.68 knots.

The previous best time established was that of the German liner Bremen, 110 hours and 27 minutes. The Italian liner Rex established a record of 109 hours and 58 minutes for the crossing from Gibraltar.

The Normandie's speed on Sunday and Monday averaged the splendid figure of 31.65 knots.

The Normandie docked at 3.25 p.m. amid pandemonium created by a crowd of over 100,000 along the waterfront, which brought all traffic to a standstill.

Two fireboats, playing jets of water like fountains, accompanied the Normandie to dock, while aeroplanes equipped with gigantic amplifiers cruised overhead and sent out the strains of the "Marseillaise."

Madame Leburn, wife of the President of France, was the first to leave the ship. She drove to her hotel escorted by motorcycle police sounding their sirens.

The passengers who made the trip across were most enthusiastic over the Normandie's performance.—Reuter.

TRIBUTE TO
HONEST"EUROPEAN DANGERS

Belief in the integrity of Herr Hitler was expressed by the Marquess of Lothian in an address
given in Edinburgh recently.

Lord Lothian, who has recently returned from Germany, said he did not think people in this country
realised what Germany had been through since 1914.

At the end of the war mankind
had had a very unbalanced sense
of proportion as the result of years
of wartime propaganda, and the Treaty of Versailles, as most students of it now realised, had been a very severe one, imposed by force, with practically no consultation with the representatives of Germany.

Germany was now, potentially, an extremely dangerous State. She was demanding equality. It was very difficult to see how you could possibly deny equality to a great nation. But equality for Germany meant insecurity for France; the population of Germany was 70
millions, and of France 40 millions.
That was the reason why France
had so persistently refused to grant equality to Germany unless given security in some other way.

The whole structure of peace in Europe had vanished since the declaration of Herr Hitler a few weeks ago that he was going to re-establish a conscription on the basis of an army of 36 divisions, consisting of 550,000 men—a good deal
larger than the French Army—
with equality in the air, and a Navy
equal to 35 per cent. of the British Navy.

QUESTIONS FOR EUROPE

Other questions which Germany
was going to ask of Europe included the demilitarisation of the Rhine; and the future of Austria,
which was sometimes called the percussion cap of Europe; and the question, which more nearly concerned us, of whether Germany was entitled to have any colonies, or was to remain exclusively contained in the restricted area in which she was confined in Europe to-day.

Lord Lothian) because they were questions which were more and more going to be brought home to people by events. Could we make these adjustments peacefully, or were we to be driven back to the
era of power politics, when people made alliances under the threat of
war, eventually ending in war?
That was the irrepressible issue
now rising in Europe. Fortunately,
he thought, the British Government had managed to follow the middle road; and had acted as interpreter and mediator so far between
the two sides.

By far the most important
speech to mankind delivered since August 4, 1914, was likely to be that delivered by Herr Hitler a fortnight or so hence, when he
would tell us what was his answer
to the negotiations taking place,
and the declaration to be made by the Prime Minister. That speech would give an indication as to whether, now that Germany had got equality—and it was impossible to deny her equality—we were going to revitalise the League of Nations, and study those and other
very difficult problems on the basis
of equality by sitting round a table,
or whether Europe was going to begin that resumption into two armed camps, the ultimate outcome
of which had in the past been war.

THE AIR MENACE

Speaking of the air menace, Lord
Lothian said that the great danger of the air was that, if the air weapon with an unquestioned superiority fell into the hands of a fool

or a knave who used it with the utmost ruthlessness, it would be directed, not so much at the military and naval forces of neighbours, as at the civilian population
in order to infuse such terror and
despair that that nation would throw up its hands to escape unrestricted bombing. That was the danger. That was why all parties supported the Government in saying that unless they could get early agreement with Germany they would insist on having an Air
Force as powerful as hers.

He was not at all unhelpful that
we would get agreement, and satisfactory agreement. He did not take the sinister view of Germany
that a great many people took. He believed Hitler was a perfectly honest and straight person, anxious for the limitation of armaments provided Germany had equality, and prepared to abolish bombers or any offensive weapon which everybody
else abolished.

Once ratios were settled it would
be easy to cut down expenditure on armaments. He was hopeful that results would follow from the negotiations which, he understood,
had now begun, but it was essential that people should realise that we were moving out of a relatively placid world into a very dangerous
period.

It would be determined by November next whether the League of Nations was going to survive in Europe or whether there was to be a realignment into two great armed camps, because November next was
the date on which the resignation of Germany from the League became effective.

MAKING A GREAT ACTOR

F. BARTHOLOMEW'S GREAT ADVENTURE

By JULIA CHANDLER
In The Christian Science Monitor

OF his most beloved character Charles Dickens wrote: "I have in my heart of hearts a favourite child. His name is David Copperfield."

A century after the great English novelist made this confession to a world he had incited to extraordinary love and sympathy for that boy, an English child was driving with an uncle from London to Dover.

The name of this child is Freddie Bartholomew.

It was one of those midsummer days when the English countryside lay new-born from a fresh shower; the clouds piled like mountains of soft down against a clear blue background, with plenty of rifts to admit the warm sunshine. It was the sort of day to encourage a little boy's natural exuberance. Nevertheless, no smile came to the chubby little face to make the dimples dance; there was no laughter in the wide hazel eyes as mile by mile went by in silence.

Then, out of the stillness a sound was made.

It was the sound of a solemn young voice saying:

"David must have been awfully tired when he got to Dover."

"What on earth are you talking about, Freddie?" asked his astonished uncle.

"David Copperfield," Freddie replied. "He was a very little boy for such a long walk."

In neither past nor present was there the slightest thing to suggest that four years after this memorable drive Freddie Bartholomew—in the person of David Copperfield—would have first-hand knowledge of just what it means for a very little boy to walk the 72 miles from London to Dover.

Well, yes—there was "Cissie."

"Cissie," whose love, care and understanding for Freddie have outdone that of Peggotty for David Copperfield.

When he was 3½ years old, living with his parents in London, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Bartholomew were persuaded by Mr. Bartholomew's sister Millicent that her country place in Warminster was just the environment for a wee boy who clamoured for the out-of-doors.

"SHORT" VISIT

"He may go with you for a short visit," agreed the Cecil Bartholomews. That "short visit" has never ended, and has ultimately as no one could have dreamed, for there are no professional folk in Freddie Bartholomew's family. His lineage is sturdy English stock—people of modest means; good education, but with no distinguished talents. If somebody had told the London Bartholomews that, at the age of 10, their offspring would stir the whole world through an extraordinarily wistful and distinguished screen performance as David Copperfield they would doubtless have questioned the prognosticator's reason. But had that somebody made the same prediction to "Cissie," her faith would have responded instantly. For "Cissie" knew.

By the time Freddie was four years old his devoted teacher and custodian knew that here was no ordinary child. Not that he is, or ever was, a child prodigy. Nothing so ephemeral as that. But "Cissie" recognised the fine quality of his imagination; his keen understanding; his exquisite sensitiveness, and his abnormal intelligence. It was her habit to tell him nursery rhymes when he first came to her. After a single recitation on her part he would repeat them accurately, and with inflections all his own. A little later, as the stories grew longer, he grasped them completely, and lived them over and over in his young mind. Thus it was when he was six years old, and made the comment about David Copperfield's walk from London to Dover, his thought was saturated with the Dickens story which, even at that tender age, "Cissie" had read to him until he knew it almost by heart.

When David Selznick selected the little English lad from among literally thousands whom he had seen in looking for someone to play the role of David in the Copperfield picture, Freddie had had practically no experience in either the theatre or on the screen. Once or twice he appeared in amateur performances in London. The first of these occasions occurred when he was barely four years old. It was a children's performance and Freddie was to sing a nursery rhyme in which his beloved "Cissie" had coached him. He stood, a tiny speck, in the centre of the big stage. The curtain was lowered, and he could hear the music, and excited voices. A big man stood in the wings, and "Cissie" was comfortingly near, so Freddie was not frightened. But he was impatient to "speak his piece." Turning, he called:

"When is the blind going up, 'Cissie'?"

PERFECT COMPOSURE

Very soon the big man in the wings raised "the blind," and the perfectly composed little boy, standing alone in the centre of the enormous stage, recited his piece without a mistake, and in a voice which, even then, hinted what he was going to do to the hearts of the millions who have recently felt such love, anxiety, sympathy and indignation as they have watched his adventures as David Copperfield.

A deep intuition, born of her understanding love, told "Cissie" after that performance that Freddie's education should include riding, swimming, tennis and cricket.

Six years elapsed between that spring afternoon when Freddie stood—a child of four years—on the stage of a big theatre—wishing "the blind would go up," and his engagement for the role of David Copperfield by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Six years of just the normal life of an English child—lessons personally directed by "Cissie"; a pony to ride; trains and soldiers and guns with which to play—and, best of all stories; stories told him by his discerning teacher and custodian.

Then one day, in the summer of 1934, Miss Millicent Bartholomew decided she would like to see America. So she gathered Freddie, such toys as he found indispensable, and the story of "David Copperfield" which the 10-year-old had declined to leave behind, and took an exciting ship for New York. Since she knew nothing whatever of the prospective production of "David Copperfield," her visit to America was not actuated by that. She just wanted a holiday; to see America, and to give Freddie his first taste of travel.

With friends in New York, she learned that Dickens's characters were to be reborn. She then read about the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer plans for the production of "David Copperfield," the book which, of all he wrote, Dickens loved best; the boy who was his "favourite child." She was told the filming of the famous story was to be a true saga of the movie industry. Already a great organisation of experts and specialists had been at work for a year. The scenario had been written; the director selected; the cast assembled.

All but the boy who would portray David in his childhood.

SAW OPPORTUNITY

"Mr. Selznick has been unable to find just the right child for little David Copperfield," the newspapers told the world.

When "Cissie" read that her heart stood still.

In two hours Miss Millicent Bartholomew and her young charge were westward bound.

Arriving in Hollywood she somehow secured an appointment with David Selznick.

"It will do you no good at all," her New York friends protested the long trip to the Coast. "Mr. Selznick has seen thousands of boys. They have come to him from every State in the Union, and from every country in Europe."

"I know," said "Cissie," politely. Five days later a little English boy of 10 summers, with limpid eyes, soft brown hair with a curl that makes all women envious; an irresistible smile; a curiously wistful voice that does things to the heartstrings; and a perfectly fearless outlook on life, stood in the office of David Selznick and recited for him Mark Antony's speech from "Julius Caesar."

After that there was much talk between "Cissie" and the producer. Freddie thought it would never end. Would they let him play David? He wanted it as he wanted nothing else in all the world. And when, finally, the long talk was ended, and "Cissie" told him Mr. Selznick had chosen him—out of thousands of other little boys—he dashed down the street shouting, "When do we begin?"

It was weeks before work on the picture did actually begin. Freddie could hardly wait. In fact, he couldn't be entirely sure he was going to be David until he was measured for his quaint little suits. After that he was satisfied.

FOUR HOUR DAY

Legally, no child is allowed to work on "the lot" more than four hours a day. It is also stipulated that three hours must be given to lessons. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer asked the Los Angeles Board of Education to help them find a suitable teacher for Freddie. They wanted an English teacher who could help him out of his confusion regarding the differences in American and English money, and teach him proper arithmetic. It was not easy, but it was at last accomplished. The minute Freddie saw Miss Murphy he adored her. Throughout the production of "David Copperfield" he had three constant companions—his own dear "Cissie"; Miss Murphy, his teacher, and Ray Sperry, his "stand-in" in the picture. Ray Sperry was 10 years old—just Freddie's age—and they had great fun together. Miss Murphy taught Ray also, using Freddie's dressing-room on rainy days, and a tent in the open when the weather was fine.

George Cukor, who directed "David Copperfield," established an immediate friendship with little Freddie Bartholomew by treating him as an equal. Even when twice, Freddie's natural love of riding induced him to mount Basil Rathbone's fine black horse and take a run down the beach when he should have been on "the lot," delaying work for more than an hour, the most cutting rebuke Cukor could find for him was: "Freddie Bartholomew, I thought you were a big boy, and not just a baby!"

The second time the director said that to Freddie it made him so indignant he never again ran away.

The only scene in the entire story Freddie approached with apprehension is that in which Murdstone gives David a severe thrashing. No one had thought to tell the little boy his clothes would be padded for the beating until just before the scene was "shot."

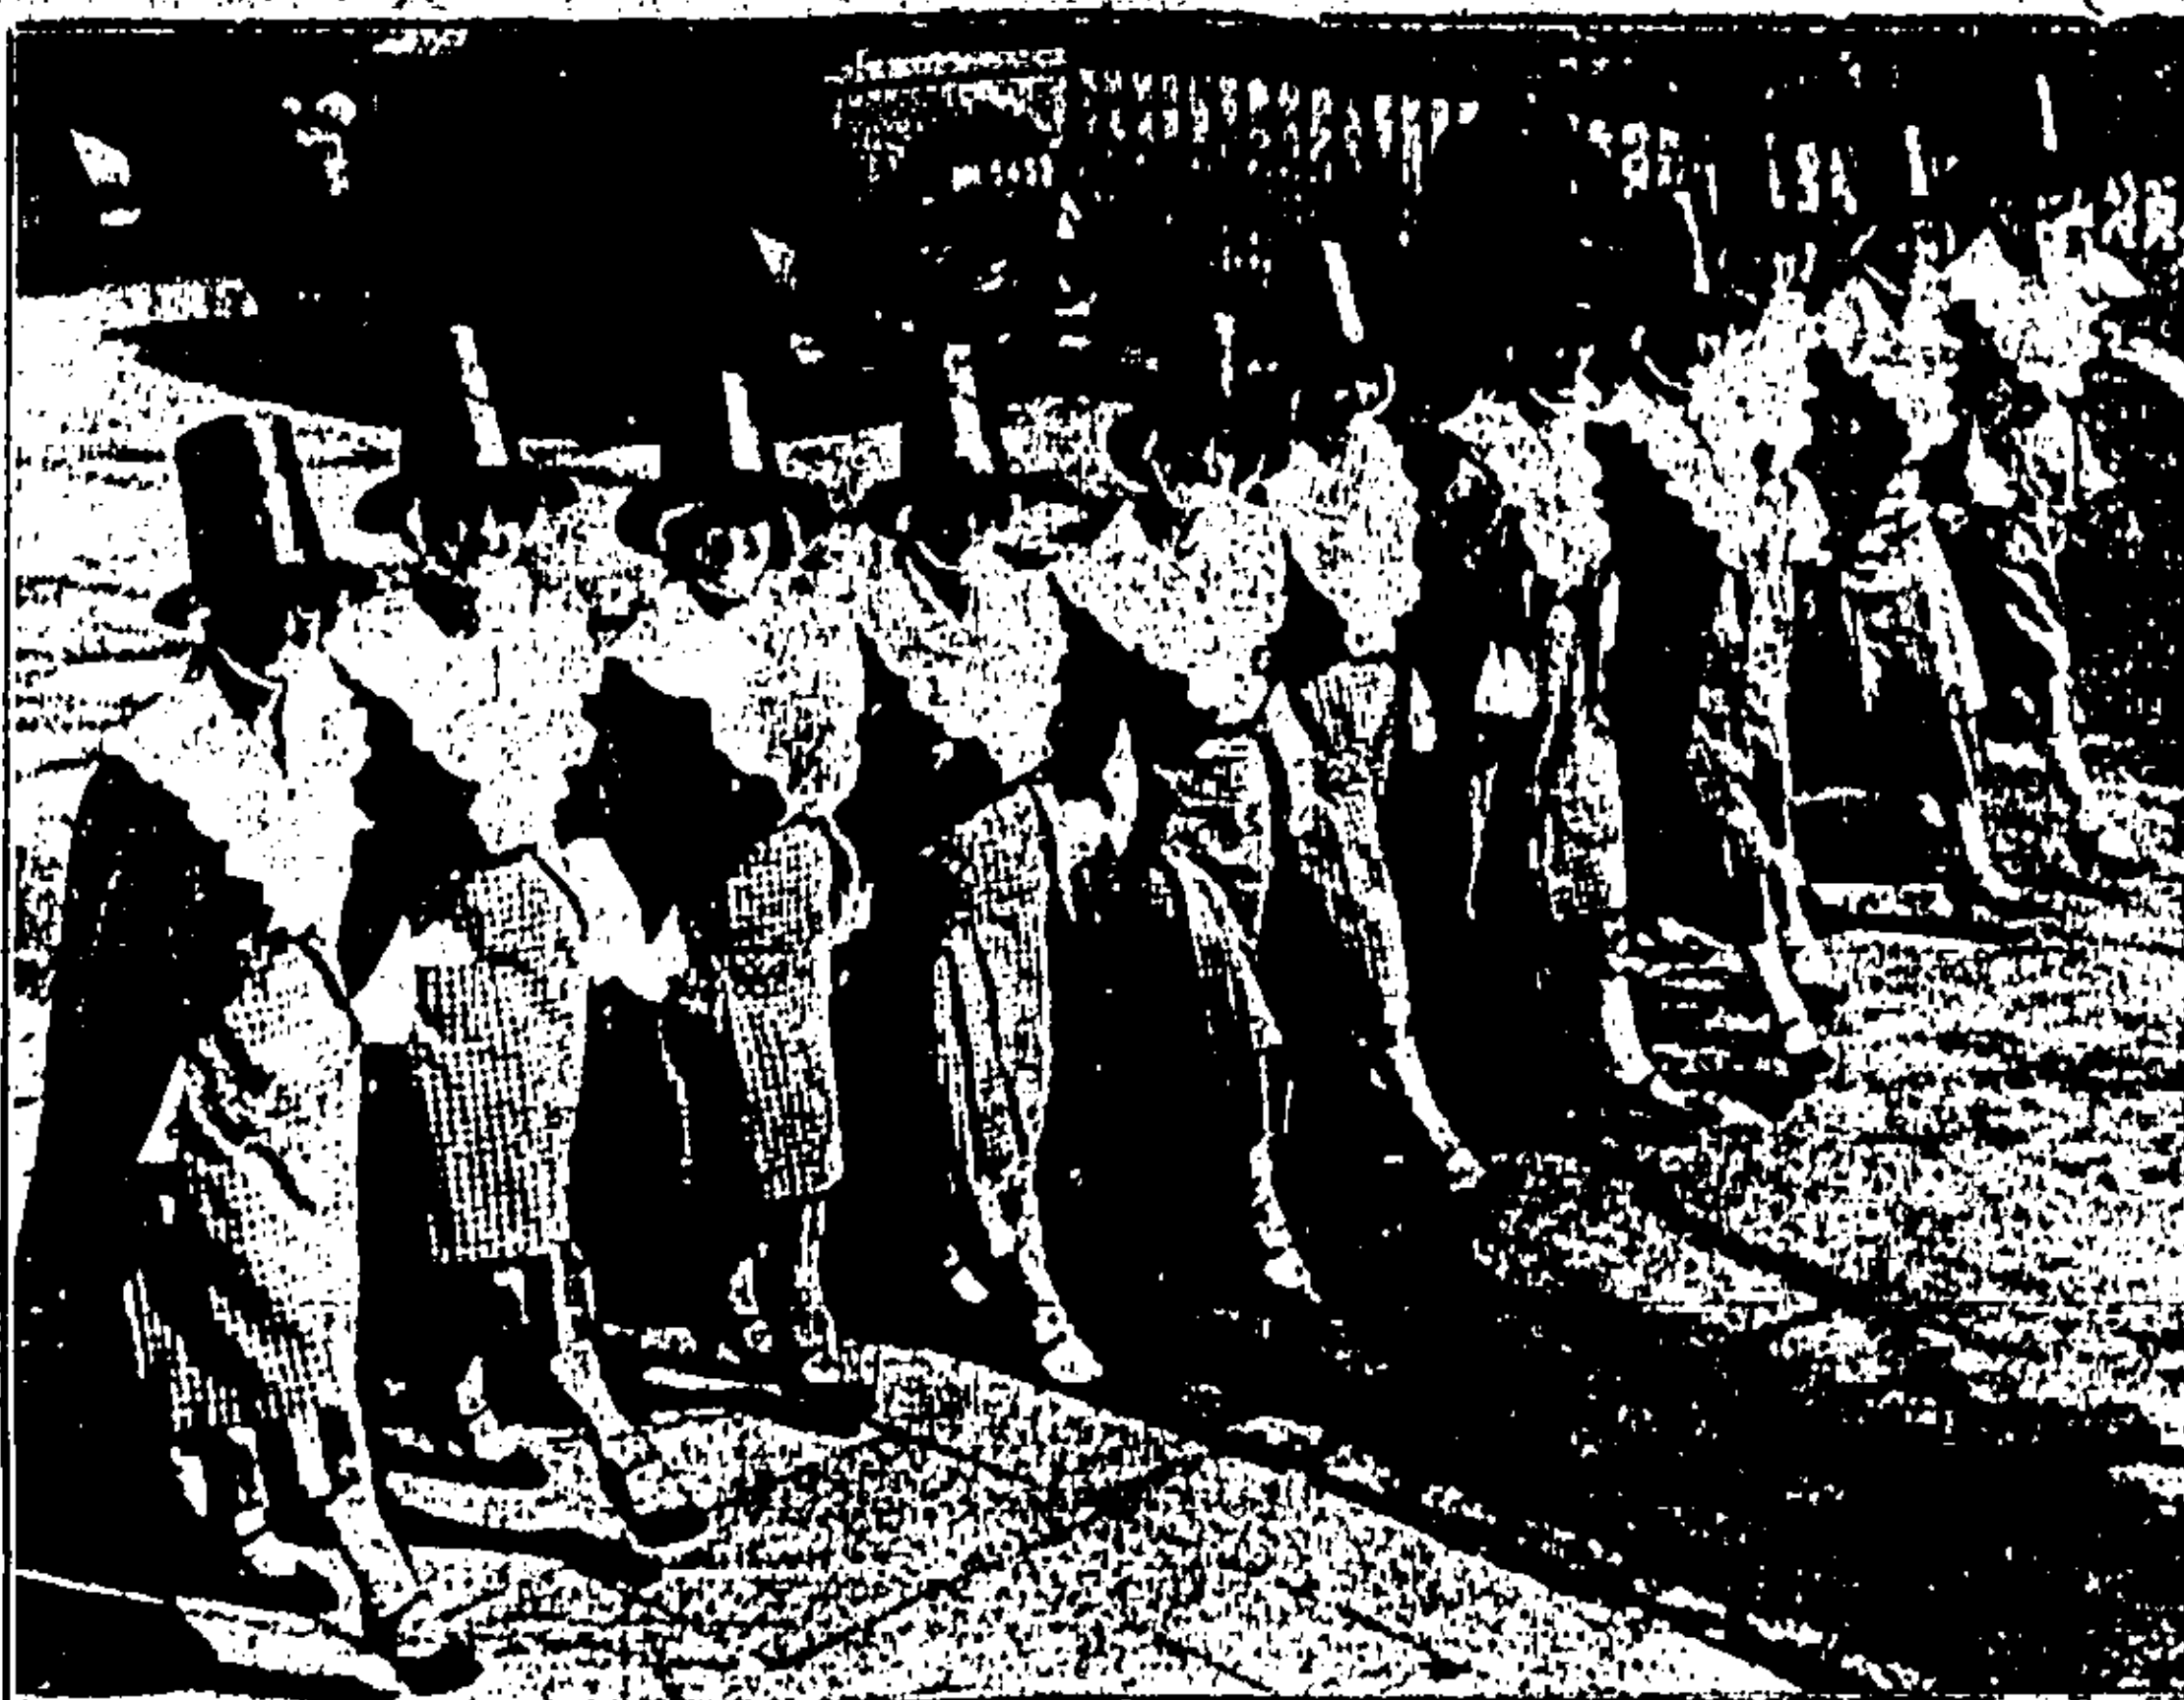

Seeing the strong cane with which David's punishment was to be administered, Freddie's uneasiness became so evident that Mr. Rathbone guessed his ignorance of the padding, and relieved his mind.

When the scene was over, and the little boy was still shaken with sobs, Basil Rathbone would have comforted him. But Freddie, who loves and admires the actor profoundly, pushed him away.

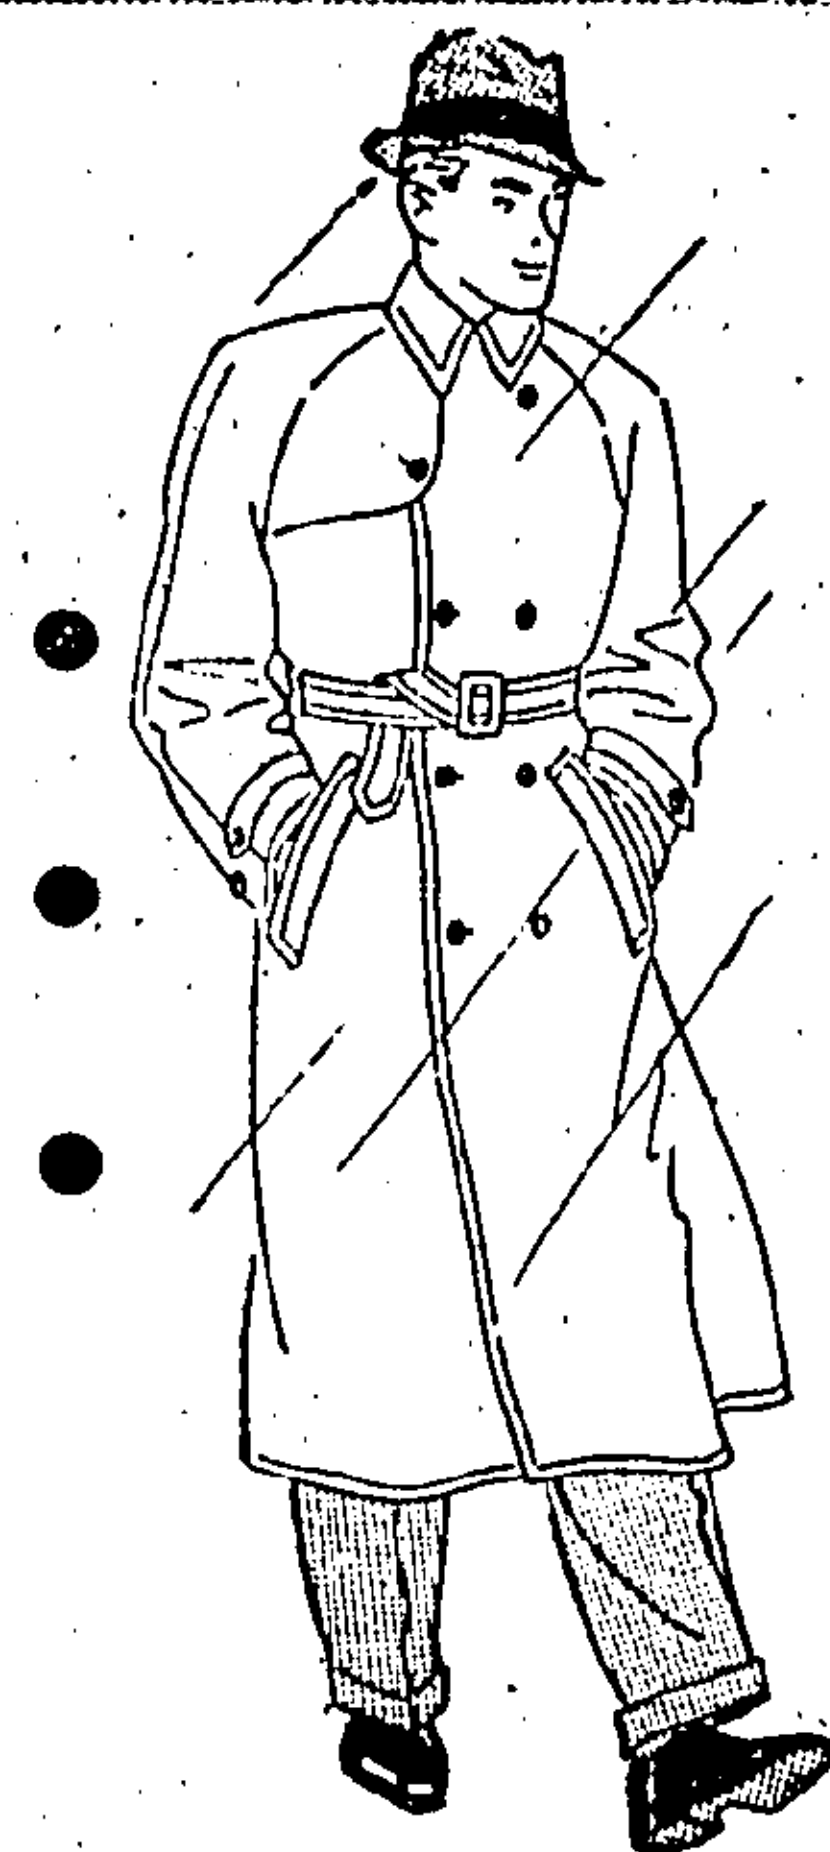

"Why, Freddie, what is the matter?" the distressed Mr. Rathbone asked, fearing the boy was mixing the actor with the odious man he portrays in the picture.

"You can certainly hit hard," Freddie's voice quivered. "Why, surely you didn't feel it with all those pads!" Mr. Rathbone exclaimed.

"The pads slipped," said Freddie.

During the celebrations in honour of the King's Jubilee, this choir sang before Their Majesties in Windsor Castle. They are well-known throughout England for their fine performances and as the picture shows, make a colourful aggregation in their national dress.

operate, the Postmaster General in Hongkong approached the Chinese Post Office in order to effect such postal arrangements and that a favourable decision by China is still being awaited. It would be a great help if the Chinese authorities would assist Hongkong in obtaining the co-operation of these airways for the purposes of mail service which would mean an important transit volume for Canton and additional business for the airways in China. Very few people in Hongkong know that the most distant points in China can now be reached by aeroplane from Canton and regularly functioning airmails from Hongkong to points in China would be in themselves invaluable advertising for the airways in China. Roads play the role of blood vessels in the economic life of a country. They have been and will always remain the most natural means of physical contact between communities, and only frequent mass intercourse brought about by motor roads and supplemented by air services will make it possible for the platonic friendship now existing between Hongkong and Canton to acquire the solidity of a community of interests which will endure the test of time.

QUETTA DISASTERHONGKONG SYMPATHY EXPRESSED

The following exchange of telegrams has been made between Hongkong and India:

From the Officer Administering the Government Hongkong to the Viceroy and Governor General Simla.

"Newspapers this morning report disastrous earthquake in Quetta with large loss of life. I hasten to express the deep sympathy of the Colony of Hongkong with the Government and people of India in this grievous calamity and the hope that later reports may show the disaster to be less serious than at present appears.—SOUTHORN, Officer Administering the Government."

From the Viceroy, India, to the Officer Administering the Government Hongkong.

"I am very grateful to you and the inhabitants of the Colony of Hongkong for your kind message of sympathy in appalling earthquake disaster in Quetta. I fear that calamity is proving to be a very real one and loss of life is grievously heavy.—VICEROY."

GOVT. HOUSE NIGHT RECEPTION*OVER 2,000 GUESTS AT ANNUAL BALL

Over 2,000 persons were the guests of His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, Sir Thomas Southorn, O.B.E., C.M.G., and Lady Southorn at a reception in honour of the Birthday of His Majesty King George V at Government House last evening.

The grounds of the Governor's residence were a blaze of colour with the lawns bordered by suspended coloured lights and the covered ways leading to the lawns draped in flags. Above the House was a large Crown picked out in coloured lights and flanked by the letters "G" and "V" which were also illuminated. Outside the main entrance two large illuminated phoenix, which were used in the recent Chinese Jubilee procession, were suspended.

The official guests were the Rt. Rev. Bishop H. Valtorta, the Rt. Rev. Bishop R. O. Hall and Mrs. Hall, His Honour Sir Atholl MacGregor Kt., and Lady MacGregor, Commodore C. G. Sedgwick, R.N., and Mrs. Sedgwick, Brigadier H. G. Seth-Smith, D.S.O., the Hon. Mr. D. W. Tratman and Mrs. Tratman, the Hon. Mr. C. G. Alabaster, K.C., O.B.E., the Hon. Mr. N. L. Smith and Mrs. Smith, the Hon. Mr. Edwin Taylor, the Hon. Mr. R. M. Henderson and Mrs. Henderson, the Hon. Sir Henry Pollock, Kt., K.C., the Hon. Sir William Shenton and Lady Shenton, His Honour Mr. Justice R. E. Lindsell, the Hon. Cdr. G. F. Hole, R.N., (Retired) and Mrs. Hole, the Hon. Mr. W. B. A. Moore and Mrs. Moore, the Hon. Mr. M. J. Breen, the Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall, C.M.G., LL.D., the Hon. Dr. S. W. Ts'o, C.B.E., LL.D., and Mrs. Ts'o, the Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, the Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson, and Mrs. Paterson, the Hon. Mr. W. H. Bell and Mrs. Bell, and Squadron Leader C. R. Keary.

The Reception

Prior to the arrival of His Excellency the official guests gathered to the left of the dais in the Ball Room, while the other guests assembled on the right hand side of the Ball Room and in the hall below the Crush Hall.

At 9.30 p.m. the doors leading to the Ball Room were closed and the arrival of His Excellency and Lady Southorn was greeted with a fanfare of trumpets.

They proceeded down a carpeted aisle to the dais at the end of the Ball Room preceded by His Excellency's Indian A. D. C., Subedar Major Waris Khan and Subedar Major Lal Khan, and followed by Capt. R. F. Waller, A.D.C., and Lieut. W. J. R. Cragg, their arrival then being signalled by the playing of the National Anthem. At the foot of the dais they received the official guests who, after thinking hands, took up their positions on the dais. The elders of the New Territories village and Indian officers were then presented and were followed by the other guests.

The Ball Room was then cleared and the dancing commenced, to music by the Hongkong Hotel orchestra.

On The Road To Recovery.

After an illness care is essential during convalescence, to avoid a relapse which may have even graver results than the first illness.

At this time the beneficial effect of a reliable tonic is most pronounced, and the early return to complete health and strength depends upon your choice of such a tonic.

The experience of many thousands of ailing people of all nationalities who have been restored to health is the best possible proof of the reliability and efficacy of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the blood and nerve tonic with a record extending over a period of more than fifty years.

If you are recovering from an illness or are feeling run down, begin a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are the prescription of a British physician, who, many years ago realised that good health was dependent upon a plentiful supply of rich red blood flowing in the veins. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills rapidly create new, rich, red blood which is the primary need of an anaemic convalescent. They build up the nerves, strengthen the digestion, overcome palpitation, dizziness, headaches, restore colour to pallid cheeks, bring new health and strength to the enfeebled frame.

Equally good for men and women, they are also of great help to growing boys and girls. At chemists everywhere, you can obtain the world's most famous tonic.

DR. WILLIAMS
PINK PILLS*A BAD CHARACTER*SON CHARGED BY FATHER FOR DISTURBANCE

Charged at the instance of his father, Yuen Choh, 21-year old and unemployed, was sentenced to one month's hard labour by Mr. Q.A.A. Macfadyen at Central Magistracy yesterday for behaving in a disorderly and insulting manner and for creating a disturbance at No. 1c, Stanley Street, 1st floor, the residence of his father, Yuen Hiu-ku, a well-known Chinese doctor.

Acting Sub-Inspector Tyler told His Worship that defendant was a bad character, being an opium addict and a gambler. At an early age he ran away from his family, but on Saturday last he returned to his father's house and demanded money. On being refused, he behaved insultingly and created a disturbance, damaging some of the property. His father brought the charge to stop him from going to his house again.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

Light refreshments were served on the Roof Garden and in the grounds during the evening, while supper was served on the balconies below the Ball Room.

A GERMAN TRIUMPH

The fact that the United States plan for an air mail service round the world will employ dirigibles on its first link, by arrangement between American and German postal officials, again calls to mind the fact that the unhappy failure of other nations to conquer the skies with lighter-than-air machines, still leaves Germany without serious rivals in this particular realm of aviation. With its globe-circling Graf Zeppelin still proudly aloft, and with another big airship nearly completed, the Germans have experienced—no such disaster as those which befell America's Macon, Akron and Shenandoah, Britain's R-38 and R-101, France's Dixmude, and Italy's Roma and Italia. The first country ever to build giant airships, Germany remains the only one which plans regularly to use them for passenger, mail and freight services to distant parts of the world. It was only after long waiting for the necessary money that Count Zeppelin, the dirigibles' inventor, was enabled actually to construct them. For a time during the war, they played an important part. As carriers of bombs against English towns, they were not so successful, because many of them were shot down by heavier-than-air craft. But they played a considerable role for a time as scout ships for the German high seas fleet. All in all, Germany used some 79 airships during the World War. Twenty-six were destroyed by the Allies, 14 were lost in storms, 12 were wrecked by explosions and 15 were put out of commission for various other reasons. By the time the war was over, the Germans were well convinced that airships could play small part in wars, because they were so easily vulnerable to swift aeroplanes circling over them. But they were still convinced of their use as commercial liners. The Bodensee, constructed at Friedrichshafen after the war, made over 100 trips, 78 being the 450 miles between Friedrichshafen and Berlin. Then the Allies stepped in and she was handed over to Italy. Her sister ship, the Nordstern, was given to France under the same conditions. In 1921, in

NOTES OF THE DAY
NEW PREPAREDNESS

It would be hard to recall a time in history when political dogma has played more definite part in the affairs of men than it does to-day. In Europe, especially, various dictatorships have evolved political creeds leaving "no hinge nor loop to hang a doubt on." In these countries one can no longer say, with Tennyson, that "there lives more faith in honest doubt, believe me, than in half the creeds." Whole populations are being reared as adherents of dogmatic creeds. In many respects the Russian political creed is more aggressive than that of any other dictatorship. It is true that Russia's present rulers do not contemplate the immediate addition of new territory, that they have dismissed the prospect of immediate interference with the internal affairs of other countries. They do not emphasise it so strongly, perhaps, but they insist that "world revolution" remains to-day, as it has been from the beginning, a cardinal tenet of the Bolshevik creed, and they do not let a day pass without reminding workers, peasants and students, even the smallest children, that they are the "vanguard of world revolution, leading the proletarians of all countries to final victory over their bourgeois masters."

CAN'T BE OVERLOOKED

This is a new form of preparedness which statesmen can no more overlook than they can disregard military preparations. Perhaps Russia's present rulers intend only to arouse in their people the enthusiasm necessary to build up a backward country, to encourage them to endure present discomforts uncomplainingly. But results are close to chauvinism. Similar preparedness programmes are under way in all European dictatorships. In fact, it is in the roots of dictatorship to mass public sentiment so solidly behind dogma as to make reason an unimportant factor in settling either domestic or international disputes. Russia simply offers the most obvious example of a danger to which supporters of democracy should ever be alert.

TO-DAY'S MOTORING HINT

DRIVING METHODS

There is much more in driving a motor car than regulating its speed and controlling the steering. Bad driving habits may seriously damage the mechanism.

For example, it is not generally realised that control methods affect the rear axle. If the clutch is allowed to engage with a jerk, as often happens when changing down on a steep gradient, it imposes a very severe strain on the final drive, bearings, and cross shafts. The strain is considerably greater than these parts are constructed to withstand. Cornering at speed also makes for more rapid wear, and if indulged in constantly may result in a fractured part. If the clutch is badly adjusted and does not disengage completely, an excessive strain is imposed on the rear axle whenever the gear is changed.

Any mistake in gear-changing re-acts adversely upon the rear axle, so it is worth while practising changing until perfect.

payment of certain reparations due to America, the company built the ship known as the Los Angeles. She was completed in the autumn of 1924 and made the first journey across the Atlantic. She was turned over to the U.S. Navy after she had been flown about 5,000 miles in a little over 100 hours and still had fuel left for a further flight of 30 hours. This feat gave the Germans a vision to which they have stuck—that of regular airship service across the ocean. The result was the building of the famous Graf Zeppelin, which was completed in 1928. Her record is, to date, unsurpassed. She has never had a serious accident. She has flown nearly a half million miles, carried over 17,500 passengers and 55 tons of freight and mails. Last year she was employed in a regular service between Friedrichshafen and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. She left respectively from the German and Brazilian cities every fortnight. Her schedule was maintained as regularly as an ocean steamer. And she is still in service to-day, a tribute to German perseverance and engineering skill.

LINKING HONGKONG AND CANTON

By A. EDDY

Experience shows that communications are a factor of paramount importance in promoting trade relations between communities, and the most concrete expression of the desire of Hongkong and Canton to inaugurate an era of closer friendship and commercial intercourse would be the speedy construction of a motor road between the two cities.

Incredible as it may seem, yet the fact is that Hongkong and Canton are the only two cities of similar size in the world situated within 100 miles of each other, which to-day are not connected by a motor road. Search the map of China or the five continents as you will, and you will not produce evidence to the contrary. This would be a circumstance easy to understand if the two cities were situated on the opposite slopes of the Himalaya mountain ranges, but there is no geographic obstruction of any kind which would make the building of such a road even difficult from an engineering point of view.

It is true that the two cities can easily communicate, thanks to a highly efficient railway and modern steamship lines, but there is comparatively very little of what could be called pleasure travel on either the railway or boats. The writer who has opportunity to meet tourists every day can cite many instances when the Canton trip was cancelled by individual travellers and groups who had had too many steamer and rail journeys on their way around the world and who preferred to make the Canton excursion by automobile.

Then there are many motor car owners in Hongkong who have never visited Canton. It is possible to doubt that they would not make an occasional trip, even if out of pure curiosity, to the most colourful and progressive city in China, if there were a motor road between the two cities?

Most European residents in Hongkong very seldom visit Canton unless on business. All these people represent dormant travel forces which will be brought to life by a motor road between here and Canton. That the beaches in Hongkong would attract a good number of visitors from the neighbouring city is a foregone conclusion. Yes, the railway, and the steamer are there, but can you compare the advantages of stepping into your own car and driving from your own home straight to a hotel in Hongkong, as against the necessity of riding to the station for the train or steamer and going through the same ceremony again at the other end, before reaching your final destination? It is not so much the money part as inconveniences like these which keep people from travelling.

In addition to overseas visitors and automobile owners in the two cities, no doubt there are individuals and groups who would with a pleasure jump into a hire car and drive over to Canton or Hongkong for occasional week-ends and impromptu excursions. Not only would the railway and the steamship lose no traffic, but it is probable that they would gain by having a number of hire car travellers who

That a strong bus competition would arise as a result of a motor road is sure and certain, but it is not at all improbable that the additional volume of business opened up by the buses serving as feeders to the railway would in a way compensate for the losses suffered in other directions as shown in the case of the newly constructed motor road between Shanghai and Hangchow.

An investigation of the existing road facilities discloses the fact that all that is needed to effect a motor connection between Hongkong and Canton is to build a motor road about a mile and a half long each on both sides of the boundary at Shum-Chun from where it is possible to drive to Canton via Waichow. The road is of course primitive and roundabout, but it would be at least a beginning until it is improved and the necessary short cuts or a more direct road via Shek-Lung are constructed.

What is true about the roads' mobilising dormant travel forces applies equally to airway connections. It takes about 45 minutes to fly from Kai Tak to Canton, and allowing another 45 minutes to reach the aerodromes at the point of departure and arrival, an air trip would be practicable in 90 minutes or 3 hours for the return trip. Business men are obliged to lose two days if they want to transact business in Canton because it is almost impossible to accomplish anything within a working day when the greater part of that day is spent on the train. An air service would enable busy executives to do useful work in the neighbouring city within a day and would land them in their own bed on the night of the same day.

Until the advent of an air service, arrangements could be made between the Chinese Post Office and the local authorities for a regular air mail service between Hongkong and China, via Canton. The day before the departure of the plane from Canton the mail could be sent to Canton by the afternoon train or by the night boat and forwarded the next day by the planes of the China National Aviation Corporation to points along the entire East Coast of China as far as Tientsin and Peiping, and the entire length of the Yangtze between Shanghai and Chengtu; by the air service of the Eurasia Aviation Corporation direct to Hankow and Peiping and other points North-West, and by the planes of the South-Western Aviation Corporation to Kwangsi and Hainan. These three airways have been functioning without a hitch for some time and can be instrumental in speeding up business between Hongkong and China. The question deserves the attention of both Hongkong and Canton and it cannot be doubted that quicker communications between Hongkong, occupying a key position from a world shipping point of view, and Canton, serving as a transit centre for South China and points beyond, will be profitable to both.

I understand that as soon as these air services began to

The Very Idea!

POT-POURRI

The railway officials here are now more convinced than ever that all Englishmen are mad (says a recent news item from Venice.)

Hardly had the Orient express left here one afternoon when it was brought to a standstill by a violent ringing of the alarm. Conductors, ticket collectors, and Fascist guards ran to see what had happened, and found an Englishman calmly lifting his luggage off the rack. He had got into the train for Constantinople in mistake for the London express, he explained.

Smilingly he paid the $10 penalty for "Misuse" of the alarm, thanked the officials for stopping the train, and just managed to catch his proper express for London.

HARD TIMES

Lady of the House—"Why, what are you?"

Beggar—"A window-box weeder, ma'am."

CLARK'S GARCE

In a recent issue of The Factor's Clerk, the official organ of house factor's clerks of Scotland, the following "Garce for our annual dinner" was suggested:—

Some hae jaws that canna cause a gumbol at a banquet; But we hae jaws that never pause, Sae let the Lord be thankit.

ODD NAMES

Conversation at the tea party drifted into talk about odd names of people. One lady said that in her locality there lived in a stair a few years ago folk whose surnames were:—Bull, Lamb, Cowe, Gonts, Kidd.

Amusement was heightened by another lady recalling that she once knew of a building where on one flat there were Brown and White; next flat, Black and Green; and in a maindoor flat Gray.

NASTY!

"My poor husband was a wonderful artist," sighed the landlady as she hacked at the piecrust, "and always said he found inspiration in my cooking."

"A sculptor, I presume," said the gloomy boarder, surveying his bent fork.

MORE HOWLERS

Vent is what you have to give your feelings now and again.

Brats are the offspring of brutes.

"An osteopath is one of the new traffic lanes."

WEEDS!

A church notice which might have been better expressed:

Subject.

Weeds in the World's Garden.

A very large attendance is anticipated.

ONE WAY

Mrs. Jones—"Dear me! The conversation is flagging dreadfully. What can we do to amuse these people?"

Mr. Jones—"I don't know, unless we go into the other room for a while to give them a chance to talk about us."

REAL SCOTS

We held a round-table competition the other evening (writes a correspondent), the test being the production of samples of laconic conversation. The following was easily the most successful entry.

It is a conversation, in Scots dialect, between a merchant and a woman about to buy woollen goods.

She—"Oo?"
He—"Ay, oo?"
She—"A' oo?"
He—"Ay, a' oo?"
She—"A' ao oo?"
He—"Aye, a' ao oo?"

The competitor translated his entry as follows:—The lady wished to know whether the garment was of wool, whether it was all wool, and whether it was all of one wool.

FINISHED!

Here is an example of the laconic style which occurred in a series of official messages.

According to a popular Air Force legend, they were dispatched by wireless to the Air Ministry from an R.A.F. base, when a new aeroplane was being handed over to Finland.

The messages ran as follows:—

12.51—Finnish aeroplane up.

12.53—Finnish aeroplane down.

12.55—Finnish Finnish aeroplane.

That told the whole story of the disaster.

"Now don't ease up on your drives, just because you're playing against a woman."

City Totally Destroyed

STATEMENT ISSUED ON QUETTA QUAKE

London, June 3.

The Quetta earthquake was the subject of a brief statement in the House of Commons by the Secretary for India, Sir Samuel Hoare, who deeply regretted to say that the reports he had received of this appalling disaster unfortunately fully bore out what had appeared in the press. He was grieved to state that the whole city of Quetta had been destroyed.

All houses in the civil area have been razed to the ground, except Government House, which is partially standing in ruins. One quarter of the cantonment area is destroyed, the remaining three-quarters being slightly damaged, but inhabitable. The bodies of about 4,500 members of the Indian civil population have been recovered.

It is feared that about 20,000 still remain buried in the debris. The total of Indian casualties outside the city of Quetta is at present unknown. The total of British deaths is about 200.

RATION SYSTEM

The situation is well in hand, but as nearly all the subordinate Police Officers have been killed, it has been necessary to ask for military assistance. The Western Command has assumed control of the situation and is rationing the population.

Communications by rail and road are reported intact. The civil land telegraphic line has been restored. In order to deal effectively with the situation, the General Officer Commanding has been authorised to declare martial law in the city and cantonment at his discretion.

A special Earthquake Department has been set up in the India Office, London, dealing with inquiries. Relatives of individuals injured are being informed of the latest news of their condition by officers of that department.

There is no truth in reports that Quetta is to be blown up and abandoned. Rescue work is continuing and will be continued to the last in the hope of rescuing survivors lying beneath the debris.—British Wireless.

WON'T BLAST RUINS

London, June 3.

A denial that Quetta would be blown up and abandoned as a result of the earthquake, was contained in a telegram sent to the India Office from the agent of the Government of Baluchistan. The message added that rescue work in the ruins would be continued until the last hope, that there might be someone still alive below the debris had been exhausted.—Reuter.

FLOOD AND DROUGHT

SHANSI PARCHED, BUT FOOCOW AWASH

Taiyuenfu, June 4.

The whole province of Shansi has been rainless since early this year. In many districts, especially in Southern Shansi, numerous crops of grains are showing signs of withering. A panic has been created among the farmers, who fear that a serious drought situation is developing.

Some inland water courses are fast drying up, causing considerable hardship among the local populace which depends on them for water supplies.—Central News.

CITY FLOODED

Foocow, June 4.

At least two-fifths of the city of Foocow is submerged in flood water from one to eight feet, as a result of the continuous rising of the Minkiang River, which has been swelled by heavy rains.

Native junks and sampans are capable of sailing in the low-lying streets. Trade activities have been almost brought to a complete standstill, while thousands of sufferers are clamouring for immediate relief. They have abandoned their homes, which entirely or partly collapsed, and are seeking temporary shelter in other quarters of the city.

The local authorities are organising emergency relief with the co-operation of Red Cross bodies and charitable organisations.—Central News.

MANY LIVES SAVED

London, June 3.

During a House of Commons debate on the vote for the Ministry of Transport, Mr. Horie Bellish referred in particular to safety measures taken on the roads. Pedestrian crossings, of which 10,000 had been laid in London within three months, had, he said, undoubtedly been responsible for the saving of life and limb.

It was notable that in London, where the safety measures so far had been chiefly concentrated, there had been a greater percentage of reduction in accidents than in the country as a whole. The speed limit had made for a safer and more agreeable flow of traffic. The most depressing feature of the accident returns was the large number of children involved, 1,171 of 3,517 pedestrians killed on the roads in 1935 being under 15 years old.

GREEN KERBS

Two departmental committees had been appointed to draw up a curriculum for the teaching of safety in the schools. Undoubtedly many accidents occurred owing to lack of playgrounds for children.

Notices of regulations would, as an experiment, be given this week converting certain streets in Southwark and Paddington into children's play streets. It was intended to erect notices at the end of the streets, and to paint the kerbs with green paint.

The Ministry would do everything possible to provide for this year's unexampled expansion of motoring. In connection with the Government's five-year road plan, programmes had been received from about half of the highway authorities, and further programmes had been received almost daily.—British Wireless.

"Truculent Tailpieces," by "No Quarter," published by the Hongkong Daily News, Ltd., at $1.00, is a happy little collection of rhymed jokes on local types and social activities, penned in sarcasm but with humorous vein. Some of the verses are particularly crisp and clever. In all, there are some thirty efforts and we can commend the little booklet as sure to raise many a chuckle, even among the victims of the author's pungent jokes, be they tail-pans, Peasie's bankers or just mere modern womanhood.

HOW ROSS BEAT MCLARNIN

SAVAGE BATTLE FOUGHT

DECISION BOOED BY CROWD

New York, May 28. In a savage battle, Barney Ross, younger and faster, hammered out a decision here to-night over Jimmy McLarnin and regained the world welterweight crown he held for less than four months last year.

The decision was justly booed by many of the crowd of 35,000 at the Polo Grounds, but there was little doubt among the ringsters that the Chicago Jewish boy had the edge over the Vancouver Irishman in their third meeting.

There were no knockdowns in the 15 furious rounds, but both bled copiously. Ross's nose bled most of the time. McLarnin took a body beating and his left eyebrow was cut in the eleventh stanza and his right eye was closing after the first few exchanges of blows.

The Irishman's left hooks and right smashes set Ross back repeatedly but the Jewish boy always came back strong, shuffling in constantly though sometimes blindly.

The Associated Press gave Ross 10 rounds, McLarnin four and rated one even, but several of the rounds scored for the challenger were close.

NO HESITATION Jack Dempsey, the former world heavyweight champion, was the third man in the ring and there was no hesitation in his decision for the Jewish boy.

Ross was a seven to five favourite in the betting because of his prime physical shape and his showing in the previous two battles. Both were well under the welterweight limit, Ross scaling 141 and the Vancouver Irishman 144½ pounds.

It was just the kind of match that turned the customers out in force twice last year—$5,000 saw Ross take the title from "Baby Face" here last May 20, and $5,000 paid to see them battle again September 17, after rain had caused four postponements. McLarnin was victorious in the return engagement, by a split decision.

The victory gave Ross a double title again, as he already is the synthetic junior welterweight champion. He relinquished his world lightweight title last month because of inability to make the 135-pound weight limit, and Tony Canzoneri, the New York youth from whom Ross had taken it, regained the lightweight crown recently by beating Lou Ambros.

The veteran McLarnin indicated in advance that in the event of a loss he was about through with the ring. He won the welter crown two years ago from Young Corbett III, now campaigning in the middleweight class, and did not make it until his class, and did not make it until his class, and did not make it until his class.

met Ross the first time a year later. Now 30 years old, McLarnin is well fixed financially with probably $250,000 in first class securities. It took him 10 years to win a world title. It was Pancho Villa, Filipino world flyweight champion, in a non-title battle, Severino in a non-title battle, Severino in a non-title battle, Severino in a non-title battle.

Ross, who is 26 years old, has been campaigning as a professional for six years and has lost only three fights while winning 41.

BAHRAM'S TEST

CAN FAVOURITE HORSE WIN DERBY?

AGA KHAN WELL REPRESENTED

(Special to "Telegraph")

London, June 3. The Jubilee Derby is likely to break all records regarding attendance.

The great question is: Will Bahram win?

It is 35 years since the last odds-on favourite, Cicero, at 4/1 won, but since that race there has never been such a small field.

Bahram, the winner of the Two Thousand Guineas, is attempting the feat, accomplished by only five horses during the past 35 years, of winning both classics.

Fox, who is riding the favourite, thinks that Bahram is a certainty. He says he is the best horse ever.

But whether Bahram wins or not the Aga Khan, with Bahram and Theft also running, has a better chance of winning the Derby than any owner has ever had.

RECORD FOR AGA KHAN THIS YEAR?

BAHRAM AND THE DERBY

Will Bahram, the Aga Khan's favourite for the Derby, satisfy its owner's one particular ambition to-morrow when the famous Epsom Classic is decided?

More than once the Indian prince has expressed the hope that he would one day own a horse good enough to pass through a normal high-class racing career without being beaten.

Last season Bahram was successful in all its five starts and this year it has already won the Two Thousand Guineas in which it gave a convincing performance and instantly established itself as favourite for to-morrow.

Bahram beat Theft, also belonging to the Aga Khan, and other Derby candidates. Bobbleigh, which has been scratched from the Derby, was favourite for the Two Thousand Guineas but ran fourth.

With Bobbleigh out of the race Bahram has now become a stronger favourite than ever.

GREAT SHOTS IN GOLF DESCRIBED

GREATEST FEAT BY ARMOUR

SCOT'S TRIUMPH IN U.S. OPEN

1927 INCIDENT RECALLED

Oakmont Country Club, where this year's U. S. Open will be played, was the scene of one of Tommy Armour's greatest exhibitions of golf. It occurred during the Open held there in 1927.

The Scot's great shot came on the 467-yard finishing hole, and after their toll and eliminations such luminaries as Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, and Bill Mehlhorn, leaving Harry Cooper, although 18 over par, leading with a total of 301. Bobby Jones scored a 309.

Armour approached the seventeenth hole needing two strokes to win over a three and a four to tie. After taking a 4 on 17, the best he could hope for was a 3 on 18 to tie.

His drive off the last tee was 275 yards. Then, living up to his reputation as a great iron player, he rapped his second 180 yards to the green.

Twelve feet of rolling terrain lay before him and another chance at the Open title. He hit the putt briskly and, while the ball was still rolling, he was so sure it would sink that he turned to his caddy and said: "You'll have to work to-morrow, Kid."

FIVE MATCHES END ON SECOND DAY

CHAMPIONSHIP LEADERS WIN CONVINCINGLY

SMITH SCORES DOUBLE CENTURY FOR DERBYSHIRE

London, June 3. Bowlers gained the ascendancy in the majority of the county cricket matches which were commenced on Saturday and of which five were brought to a definite conclusion on the second day.

Derbyshire, the present leaders of the Championship, were in their best form against Hampshire in the match at Chesterfield, where the hosts won convincingly by an innings and 104 runs after dismissing Hampshire for scores of 140 and 134. D. Smith, the left hander, who showed some brilliant form last season, has quickly got into his stride and a double century by him enabled Derbyshire to declare at 378 for nine wickets. Smith, who had made 203 runs on Saturday, carried his score to 225 before dismissal to-day.

WIN FOR YORKSHIRE Yorkshire, champions for three successive years prior to last season, again will make a strong bid for the title.

After a series of reverses Sussex are slowly coming into their own and in their match against Somerset at Hove they won by an innings and 85 runs.

With a score of 321 runs Sussex declared their first innings closed with nine wickets down. John Langridge was top scorer with 158 to his credit. Andrews took five of the wickets for 74 runs.

Somerset were dismissed for 104 and then, following on, for 132.

SECOND INNINGS COLLAPSE Worcestershire, playing at Stourbridge, were beaten by Leicestershire by seven wickets.

The home county had first innings but Geary was too deadly and the last wickets fell for 111 runs. The former Test bowler took five for 33. Leicestershire replied with a score of 137 runs.

A collapse in their second innings which realised but 77 runs left Worcestershire in a hopeless position and Leicestershire scored 53 runs for the loss of three wickets. Smith captured five for 32 when Worcestershire were dismissed cheaply in their second venture.

GLAMORGAN WIN AGAIN Glamorgan have been playing consistent cricket this season and at Llanelly they beat Northamptonshire by an innings and 109 runs.

J. C. Clay is again bearing the brunt of the attack and in this match he took nine wickets for 54 runs when Northants were dismissed for 137 in their first innings. In their second he captured another six for 32 in an innings which yielded 103 runs.

Glamorgan had scored 349 runs in their innings in which Lavis contributed 101 runs.—Reuter.

for honours and in the match against Kent at Bradford, they secured their fourth victory in six matches, by two wickets.

"Tich" Freeman again took principal honours with his slow bowling and captured thirteen wickets during the match.

After Kent had compiled a total of 182, Yorkshire were dismissed for 132 runs, Freeman taking six wickets for 47. Kent were unable to take advantage of the first innings lead and were sent back a second time for 140 runs. Macaulay had five wickets for 40 and Verity five for 52.

Herbert Sutcliffe it was who came to the rescue of Yorkshire with a brilliant 110 runs scored against the Kent bowlers even with Freeman in his best form. Yorkshire won with two wickets to spare scoring 192 for eight. Freeman had seven wickets for 108 runs in the second innings.

After a series of reverses Sussex are slowly coming into their own and in their match against Somerset at Hove they won by an innings and 85 runs.

Somerset were dismissed for 104 and then, following on, for 132.

SECOND INNINGS COLLAPSE Worcestershire, playing at Stourbridge, were beaten by Leicestershire by seven wickets.

The home county had first innings but Geary was too deadly and the last wickets fell for 111 runs. The former Test bowler took five for 33. Leicestershire replied with a score of 137 runs.

A collapse in their second innings which realised but 77 runs left Worcestershire in a hopeless position and Leicestershire scored 53 runs for the loss of three wickets. Smith captured five for 32 when Worcestershire were dismissed cheaply in their second venture.

TERROR TO SECOND RATERS

KING LEVINSKY SCORES

VICIOUS SCRAP IN TORONTO

Toronto, May 27. King Levinsky, who has become the terror of the second raters since Max Baer knocked him out in the second round last December, hammered out a decision here to-night in 10 rounds from Hans Birkie of Germany.

The Chicago one time fish peddler won every round but his roughness brought boos from the crowd.

It was a vicious scrap all the way through. Levinsky hit the German in the fifth before the latter left his chair, and both continued battling after the bell had sounded.

It was their second meeting in a little more than a month as the King-fish technically knocked out Birkie in the fourth stanza on April 15 at Denver. It was his eight knockout in nine starts.

GIFT FROM "LITTLE WILLIE"

STEVE HAMAS HONOURED

SOUVENIR GIVEN BY ADMIRER

London. Steve Hamas' proudest souvenir of his losing fight against Max Schmeling at Hamburg is a solid-silver cigarette case, bearing the monogram "W" and the crest of Germany's former imperial family.

Badly beaten, his face feeling, as he put it, "like a balloon," the American fighter was sitting in the lobby of his hotel the day after the bout when a messenger approached and handed him a small package.

In it was the case, together with a postcard-size photograph of the former Crown Prince Wilhelm of Germany. On the back, written in the handwriting of the man America called "Little Willie" during the war years, was the note:

"Mr. Hamas: Will you kindly accept this small token from me—greatly admired your brave fight Wilhelms."

Antonio Martius, a 30-year-old Peruvian, was sentenced to six months' hard labour, when he appeared before Mr. Thomson on remand at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday morning, on a charge of returning from banishment. Defendant was informed that when he is released from prison he will be sent back to Peru. Previous convictions against defendant were for failing to return to the House of Detention in 1923, drunk and incapable in 1925 and entering the Colony without a valid passport last year, after which he was banished in October for ten years. Detective-Sergeant Franklin appeared for the prosecution.

BY M. GOURLAY AT WORPLESDON

FOUR STROKES TO GOOD

Worpleston women's open meeting yesterday saw one score so brilliant that its perpetrator really had no cause to crave for the strong right arm of a male partner such as would have supported her in the annual mixed foursomes there. Miss Gourlay was round in 73, and even allowing for the difference in tees, that is a total that a mixed pair might be justly satisfied with.

The difference in trees was chiefly apparent at the short holes, which the shrubs conveniently form a spoon for No. 4 or even less. At the longer holes there was not more than half a dozen to ten yards difference, so that it was really good golf which meant that players who expected to win the scratch prize were seldom obliged to take wood for their second. Limber shafts have done much for many, but in the case of Miss Gourlay the extra length which she seems to have acquired comes from a whippy hickory-shafted driver, a club of dreams with which she drove supremely well.

She started off by putting a No. 4 second shot some three yards from the first hole, and sinking the put for a 3. The next incident, since our camera took no useless figures that was bunkering her second shot at the 6th and getting out too strongly over the green. Many apparently good second, finished over there yesterday, for there was a wind, with plenty of weight in it, blowing up that fairway'. At the 8th a glorious drive left her no more than a little pitch and run, which scoffed at the new bunkers, closing up the green, climbed the hill, and gave chance of a birdie 3. Miss Gourlay took it, and in spite of a 5 at the 9th was out in 35.

THREE PUTTS

The 10th was the only hole of the round to cost her 3 putts, and after that she went on again without semblance of a shot dropped until the 16th. There her 3rd was bunkered beside the green, but she got out grandly and holed the putt for the regulation 5. At the 16th the long putt nearly dropped for a 2, and the position was that she needed two 4's for a 72.

An immense drive to the 17th boded well, a missed second boded badly, and a massive nibble hit on the head still worse. The shot was terrifying. But somehow the shot having run all round the cushions, came to rest on the upper out-skirts of the green. Miss Gourlay played a clever run up, and there was 5. She hit a fine drive to the 18th, but it was slightly to the right and there was no circumventing the guardian bunker; it must be carried and no mistake about it, and with wood, for the wind was strong. She played the sort of rare shot which does merit the name superb, carried the left-hand end of the cushion just the right amount of drift to take her well into the green, and put the approach putt to the very lip. Home in 38.

Her card, a record for the present course, read:
3, 4, 4, 3, 6, 4, 3, 3, 5—35 out;
4, 5, 5, 3, 4, 5, 3, 5, 4—38 home—

3. Mrs. Douglas Fish's 77 came second, Mrs. Peel's 79 third, for Mrs. Clarke, out in 36, broke down on the homeward way, so did Miss Halsted, after getting out in 37, and Mrs. Kennedy and Miss Rabbidge in 38.

SERIAL STORY

The DARK BLOND

by CARLETON KENDRAKE

CHAPTER XXXV

The key rattled in the lock on the other side of the door. Millicent waited, expecting momentarily that the door would open; that Bob Caise would enter the room and a deadly combat would ensue between him and Norman Hupp. But the door didn't open. The key continued to make noises in the lock as the person on the outside of the door strove to work the lock.

After a few moments the key was withdrawn and then, after an interval, another key inserted. Once more a key rattled about in the lock and Norman Hupp turned to Millicent and whispered, "It's someone who's trying to pick the lock with a skeleton key."

"But who could it be?" she whispered.

"Fush," he answered. "He'll hear us."

They stood perfectly still, listening to the noise made by successive keys as they were fitted, one by one, into the lock and the man on the other side of the door tried to open it.

Norman Hupp leaning close to Millicent so that his lips were almost against her hair, whispered, "We've simply got to find out who that is. Stand perfectly still and don't make a move when I open the door."

"You're not going to open the door?" she protested.

"No, I'm not," he answered. "I'll place my finger against his lips in a mute command for silence, then lean forward so that his ear was against the panel of the door. A few moments later the noise made by the key in the lock ceased. The knob of the door turned again as though the person standing in the hallway might be making the last attempt to push the door open. Then there was silence."

Norman reached for the door knob. Millicent flung her weight against his arm, pulling his hand away from the knob.

"Don't be foolish," he told her. "We've simply got to know who's at the door."

"If you open the door he'll see you," she said.

"No, he won't. He's going to the elevator."

"I won't let you do it. He'll shoot," she said.

"No, he won't. It isn't Bob Caise. I've got to find out who it is."

"I'll tell you," she said, "what you can do. Wait until he gets in the elevator and then run down the stairs. You can get to the lobby almost as quickly as he does. Then he won't be suspicious. Wait until you hear the elevator door clang and then you can start."

The words were no sooner spoken than they heard the sound of the elevator door moving on its track.

"Now," she exclaimed, "go ahead. I'll wait. Come back here just as soon as you find out."

He jerked the door open, paused while he peered down the hallway, said disgustedly, "He's already in the elevator." Then he turned toward the staircase and disappeared around the corner of the corridor.

Millicent closed the door of the room, grateful that she had prevented Norman from making his dangerous but suddenly realizing that she had left herself in a far from enviable position. She was alone in this apartment, rented by a killer or a killer's accomplice, and Bob Caise, who had threatened to "take care" of her, might return at any moment.

She felt a touch of panic but reassured herself with the thought that Norman Hupp would soon return. She decided to utilize the few minutes that she would necessarily be in the apartment by making a more thorough search.

She went to the writing desk, opened it and looked for some bit of evidence which would give her additional information about the occupant of the apartment.

There was some note paper, some stamps, a rent receipt, a blotter, some pens, ink, and the broken stub of a pencil in the desk, but nothing that gave her a clue to that which she sought.

Millicent turned back once more toward the closet, suddenly remembering that she had looked only at the coat hangers for garments. She had not looked into the darker corners at the back of the closet.

She opened the door and peered to the right. She thought she saw a bulky object and stooped, pushing forward her right hand with exploring finger-tips outstretched.

She touched something hard, solid and smooth. Her fingers ran around it until she realized that it was a suitcase. She groped for the handle, found it and lifted.

The suitcase was surprisingly heavy. She dragged it out to the light and gave an exclamation of delighted surprise. It was the suitcase Jarvis Hupp had given her—the suitcase containing the books of account covering the business dealings of Hupp and Gentry.

She forgot her surroundings in the thrill of her discovery. She dragged the suitcase well out into the center of the apartment, dropped it to her knees, opened the clasp, unfasted the straps and stared at the assortment of books revealed as the suitcase swung open.

She glanced through the books hastily and realized that beyond doubt they were the ones which dealt with the affairs of Hupp and Gentry.

Millicent's mind raced with a quick succession of startling thoughts. There was now no question but that the occupant of the apartment was directly concerned with the affairs of the Hupp household and must also be implicated in some way in the Drimgold murder. But that possible connection there lay between Drimgold and the Happs!

Then there was Bob Caise to be considered. Undoubtedly he knew more than he cared or dared to tell about the woman in the black evening coat. Bob Caise had key to the apartment. Yet he had knocked at the door before he had tried that key.

A peculiar series of code knocks. If he had a key why had he bothered to knock? And why the code?

Millicent had thought at first that the occupant of the apartment worked daytimes and was in the apartment only at night. But Bob Caise must have expected to find someone there. Otherwise he wouldn't have given that peculiar knock. And who had been the other person who had come to the door, given the same set of code knocks and then tried in vain to unlock the door?

Millicent looked up from the suitcase, suddenly realizing that she had lost all track of time while she had been speculating upon these angles of the case. She wondered if Norman had been able to reach the lower floor of the apartment house in time to see the person who had left the elevator. Had he been successful in avoiding detection?

She carefully closed the suitcase and carried it to the door so that when Norman returned no time would be lost in leaving the apartment and carrying away the valuable evidence she had discovered.

Minutes passed, minutes which seemed eternities. Slowly the conviction was forced upon Millicent's mind that some untoward circumstance had upset Norman's plans. She knew that his concern for her safety was such that no ordinary interruption would have prevented him from returning to the apartment.

Millicent realized that she dared not wait longer for him. He had undoubtedly encountered something which had prevented him from returning. There was only one thing for her to do, and that was to leave at once.

She picked up the suitcase and, as she did so, realized that she was holding every bit of evidence they had been able to uncover, every bit of evidence which would show the sinister activities of the woman in the evening coat, or link Bob Caise with the Drimgold murder. In her right hand she carried the suitcase which had been stolen from the Hupp residence. Over her left wrist was the strap of the purse in which she carried the folded note signed by Bob Caise. She took a deep breath, tried to steady the pounding of her heart, opened the door into the corridor, hesitated a moment, then pushed her way out into the corridor, the heavy suitcase banging against her legs.

The corridor was empty. Millicent closed the door behind her, heard the spring lock click into place, turned toward the elevator and then decided that she dared not risk descending in the elevator. She turned down the corridor toward the stairs, the heavy suitcase causing her to exert all of her strength in order to carry it.

She reached the bend in the corridor, turned toward the stairs and heard the clang of the elevator door.

Her heart gave a leap as she realized that this might be Norman Hupp. She dropped the suitcase to the floor and turned back toward the corner of the corridor, ready to cry out Norman Hupp's name as she saw him coming down the corridor.

She swung around the corner and suddenly came to a dead stop in consternation.

A man was walking directly toward her, a man who walked with the quick, purposeful strides of someone proceeding toward a very definite objective. There was something in the set of his shoulders, something in the poise of his head which reminded her of a wild beast hunting down some small, defenceless animal.

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

"Under the Tonto Rim" latest of the Zane Grey action romances is to be shown at the Alhambra Theatre to-day. Stuart Erwin, Fred Kohler, Raymond Hatton and Verna Hillie head the picture's cast. It is the story of a cowboy who just cannot do anything right—up until the time he really loses his temper. Erwin is the cowboy—a plainsman, who, failing at the cowboy's other branch of stock-raising, ultimately is set on guard over several hundred head of cattle corralled near a railroad. But he fails at that too; the cattle are stolen from under his very nose. Disgusted, he accepts advice of two designing cronies and goes into hog-raising but the work disgusts him, and the cronies, sensing something wrong, decide that what he needs to make him content with his lot, is a wife. So they take him to a border-town saloon, and spread the report that he is a notorious desperado. Women flock around; men proceed to break up the place, for what he is and the daughter of his former boss, who had been deeply impressed, turns upon his scorn. Her scorn at last makes him lose his temper. With all the verve of the desperado, he breaks up the place, seizes the boss' daughter, and carries her off with him.

Casino Murder Case

In "The Casino Murder Case," the next change at the Queen's Theatre, Paul Lukas, featured player of such successes as "Little Women" and "The Fountain" brings to the screen a rather distinctive portrayal of Philip Vance, S. S. Van Dine's famous of the "Detective" series. Rather than present a purely dramatic mystery, Producer Lucien Hubbard has chosen to make the newest Philo Vance thriller an unusually humorous yet mystifying story with rapid-fire action and sparkling dialogue suggestive of the tempo of "The Thin Man." That the picture has its funny moments is assured by the fact that the inimitable Alison Skipworth is prominently cast as the domineering "Mrs. Llewellyn" around whom much of the action circles. Others who have prominent roles included Donald Cook, Ronald Russell, Ted Healy, Arthur Byron, Isabel Jewell, Louise Fazenda and others.

"The Age for Love"

Billie Dove makes a triumphant return to the screen in "The Age for Love," the Howard Hughes production, which comes to the Star Theatre to-day. After a prolonged vacation of a year, Billie Dove returns to the screen, a "new Billie Dove" has been created, and this sensational new screen personality is revealed for the first time in "The Age for Love." The more histrionic talent that money could buy was engaged for the cast, which includes Charles Starrett, Lois Wilson, Edward Everett Horton, Mary Duncan, Adrian Morris and Betty Ross Clarke.

"Sorrell and Son"

A classic of literature, and a classic of the silent screen, Warwick Deering's "Sorrell and Son" now comes before the public again, this time in the form of a talkie made by British and Dominion productions. The picture is a masterpiece of presentation. There has never been a more strikingly successful emotional drama than the silent film, and it is safe to predict that a similar reception awaits the new version. The star of the silent version, H. B. Warner, plays the part of Sorrell once more, but he is behind him only the experience and knowledge gained while portraying the character six years ago but the lesson of over a hundred screen performances in Hollywood. Warwick Deering's story has been rigidly adhered to in the scenario. Lyric Hayward, in the story, took an active interest. The director chosen to handle the subject was Jack Raymond, than whom no one could be better qualified. The supporting parts are played by a mammoth cast.

"The Band Plays On"

In the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "The Band Plays On," at the Oriental Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, select group of up-and-coming young screen players go "strictly collegiate" for the theatre public. The swift-moving story reveals the trials and tribulations of college life, its romantic interludes, its lighter moods and its spirit of youth. The romance is supplied by Robert Young and Betty Furness. Leo Carrillo, who scored so successfully in "Viva Villa!" again gives his delightful Latin accent another airing. Ted Healy steps forth in a new and different characterization as the "henry" who walks through life on the shady side of the street. Also, there are Stuart Erwin, now remembered for his work as the war correspondent in "Viva Villa!," Russell Hardie, Preston Foster, Robert Livingston and William Tannen.

"Mills of the Gods"

Out of the dynamic, present-day scene of industrial strife and the pleasure-seeking class is on the wave, Columbia Studios have fashioned a stirring romantic drama called "Mills of the Gods." The film, which has its initial showings to-day at the Queen's Theatre, stars May Robson in a role which provides her with the finest opportunity for a dramatic, emotional characterization since "Mother's Millions." In the supporting roles, Ray Wray and James Blakely turn in interesting performances. Miss Wray looks lovely and is her usual competent self. As the labour agitator, Victor Jory is excellent. He gives a realistic and skilful portrayal of a difficult character for which he deserves the greatest praise. Raymond Walburn, former New York stage star, is equally as good as the arrogant son. The direction by Roy Wm. Neill is above par. He has brought the mood and spirit of the time in his exciting, brisk-paced production, lending vividness and conviction to the gripping story. Briefly, "Mills of the Gods" tells the tale of a large industrial plant caught in the grip of the depression. The climax caps a vivid, unforgetable entertainment which everyone should see.

"Roberta"

Irene Dunne, RKO-Radio's beautiful and charming star, views her current picture, "Roberta," with great good cheer and with tranquillity of spirit. Showing at the King's Theatre to-day, "Roberta" is the screen version of Jerome Kern's tuneful Broadway hit, and stars Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers as well as La Belle Irene Dunne. In the first place, she is wearing the smartest of smart modern gowns in "Roberta," and what a blessed relief it is that! For in her last two pictures,

CAPTAIN R. F. WALTER LEAVING HONGKONG

A. D. C. TO THE GOVERNOR FOR PAST TWO YEARS

Captain Reginald Frederick Walter, who was A.D.C. to His Excellency Sir William Peel during the last two years of his governorship of the Colony, and who is at present A.D.C. to His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, Sir Thomas Southern, is leaving for England on June 14 in the Empress of Canada to re-join the Royal Artillery.

On Capt. Walter's departure Lieut. W. R. J. Cragg, of the 1st Bn. the Lincolnshire Regiment, will take over duties as A.D.C. to His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government.

During his stay in the Colony Capt. Walter has enjoyed immense popularity, not only among the younger set but also with the older residents, both foreign and Chinese. On his shoulders the burden of arranging official functions at Government House has fallen and to him much of the credit for their success has been due.

Capt. Walter was born in 1908 and joined the Royal Artillery as a 2nd Lieutenant in 1928, being promoted to the rank of Lieutenant three years later. He was appointed A. D. C. to His Excellency Sir William Peel in November, 1932.

on her home lot, "Stingaree" and "The Age of Innocence," she was engaged in period gowns, with bustles, stays and all the other trappings of the Eighties and Nineties. Then, too, in "Roberta" she is singing for her admirers. To one who studies the opera, as did Irene, and spent her theatrical years on the operetta stage, this is a great joy.

"Beggars in Ermine"

Character actors are few and far between with Lon Chaney enjoying the distinction of having been perhaps the peer of them all with his many characterizations in crippled and deformed screen roles. With his death a few years ago, a search was made by motion executives for someone to take his place but to no avail; there could be only one Chaney. However, it remained for Lionel Atwill, another famous stage actor, to come closer perhaps to the style and technique of Chaney aided of course, by his experiences of many years on the stage in many dramatic roles. Since his arrival in Hollywood a few years ago, this veteran star has achieved merit as a sterling portrayal of cripples and deformed men by his work in "Mystery of the Wax Museum," "Murder in the Zoo," "Song of Songs," and others. Atwill continues with his excellent work in his latest Monogram feature, "Beggars in Ermine," which is coming to the Alhambra Theatre on Thursday. In his latest contribution to the screen, Atwill assumes the role of a loquacious beggar, reduced to his lowly place in life by an accident in the steel mill which he once owned and the underhanded dealing meted out to him by a trusted employe.

JAPANESE OFFICER LODGES PROTEST

Shanghai, June 3. According to Japanese reports from the Japanese Headquarters in Tientsin, Colonel Takashi Saito, the Chief of Staff of the Japanese forces in North China, will go to Peiping to-night in order to lodge a protest with the Chinese Minister of War, General Ho Ying-ching, against the alleged destruction of a Japanese military telephone line by Chinese troops.

"Unless an immediate stop be put to such practices," continues the announcement, "the Japanese forces will have to resort to measures whereby they may protect their property as provided in the Boxer protocol."

A Rengo message from Tokyo states that a spokesman at the Japanese Foreign Office indicated to-day that General Ariyoshi, who intends to sail for China on June 10, will decline to include a settlement of the North China dispute in his negotiations with Nanking authorities.

The problem was local and should be settled locally, added the spokesman, in accordance with the Tangku Pact.—Reuter.

Tokyo Staff Officers

Shanghai, June 3. Lieut-Colonel Tsuchibashi from the Tokyo War Office arrived in Tientsin yesterday, and in Peiping to-day.

He flew to Jehol with Major Ishii of the Tientsin staff in order to co-ordinate the plans of operation in North China should they eventually prove necessary.—United Press.

Japanese Troops

Osaka, June 3. A detachment from the Fourth Division of the Japanese Army will proceed to China from here on June 7.

The detachment will relieve those units already stationed in China whose term has expired. It will consist of two infantry regiments and one battalion of engineers.—Reuter.

War Minister Optimistic

Tokyo, June 3. A report from Tientsin, in Northern Manchuria, states that General Senjuro Hayashi, Japanese War Minister, who is visiting Manchukuo, said in a press interview that the present situation in North China was not serious enough to require immediate action on the part of Japan. He believed that the disputed points of the Tangku Agreement would be amicably settled.—Central News Agency.

Chinese Leaders to Confer

Shanghai, June 3. It is learned in certain quarters that the Chinese Government leaders regard the recent developments in North China as extremely unfortunate, especially as they should have occurred at a time when Sino-Japanese relations have improved, following the elevation of the Chinese and Japanese Legations at Tokyo and Peiping to the status of Embassies.

A conference of Central Government leaders will be held shortly to examine outstanding Sino-Japanese problems, particularly those affecting North China.—Central News Agency.

STABILISATION

CAILLAUX FAVOURS A CONFERENCE

Paris, June 3. It is reported that M. Caillaux, who is Minister of Finance in the new Bouisson Cabinet, is contemplating calling an international Conference on currency stabilisation.—Reuter.

A Propitious Moment

Paris, June 3. It is expected that the proposed French action may, if taken, break the stalemate which has arisen. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, recently stated in the House of Commons "The Government has been trying to get someone to take the initiative towards currency stabilisation." Efforts to date had not been very successful, added Mr. MacDonald. The proposed French action will, therefore, probably be welcome to most of the countries concerned.

The motives for M. Caillaux's action are believed to be connected with both the internal and external policy of France.

Internal considerations doubtless will necessitate some measure of devaluation of the franc, and this step would be far more palatable to the French public were it linked with some form of international agreement.

The prospects of American co-operation, too, are considered to have improved since the recent severe setback to the New Deal programme; concentration of the N.R.A. administration prevented the United States from displaying a helpful attitude towards the abortive World Economic Conference which was called in 1933.

President Roosevelt, it is thought, may now be glad to find such an escape in external affairs from the more local worries which at present beset him.—Reuter.

Secretary could give the House any information with regard to the Japanese Ultimatum to the Chinese Authorities.

Sir John Simon replied that he had received no information. He understood, however, that the Japanese military authorities in Peiping had protested against the alleged violations of the Tangku Armistice Agreement, and also with regard to the alleged recent murder of two Chinese newspaper proprietors in the Japanese Concession in Tientsin.—Reuter.

B. AND S. PURCHASES

SALE OF THREE RAPIDS BOATS

The sale of three Yangtze Rapid vessels, as published in the North China Daily News, has been confirmed by representatives of Messrs. Butterfield & Swire and the China Finance Corporation. The price has not been made public, it being understood that six other vessels are also for sale. The transfer includes the m.v. I-Fung, the s.s. I-Ping and the s.s. Chi-Ping.

Title to these ships formally was obtained on October 1, 1934, according to Judge M. D. Purdy, President of the China Finance Corporation, who yesterday informed a representative of this journal that the Yangtze Rapid Steamship Co., Hongkong and Shanghai Bank Building, signed a deed of trust on that date, which conveyed all vessels, docks, office, and furniture fittings, and goodwill to the China Finance Corporation.

The China Finance Corporation had advanced $1,000,000 over a period of years, and this was the amount stated in the deed, with interest at eight per cent. The Company is still operating the other vessels, although the Corporation holds a virtual title. Judge Purdy further stated that offers had been received for the sale of the remaining six vessels of the fleet.

To Protect Interests

In order to protect their interests, and those of preferred creditors, the China Finance Corporation had advanced another lakh of dollars since October 1, most of which was spent on paying the wages of officers and crews, insurance, and general supplies. Since October 1, there had been a lapse in interest payments, and, on or about March 15, the China Finance Corporation declared the Yangtze Rapid Steamship Co. in default, taking steps to realize on the properties. One of their representatives attended the steamship offices, while another was appointed to the Board of Directors.

In addition to the sum involved with the China Finance Corporation, it is understood that other claims amounting to five lakhs had been incurred, such as labour and supplies for operating the ships, as well as a bank loan of $50,000.

Petition to U.S. Court

On the return of the U.S. Court party from the North, Judge Purdy stated that the China Finance Corporation would petition for the confirmation of the trusteeship, and the appointment of a liquidator.

Messrs. Parsons & Co., engineers, surveyors, and ship brokers negotiated the deal.

The Yangtze Rapid Steamship Co. issued the following statement: "The President of the Yangtze Rapid S.S. Company, when interviewed to-day, denied the sale of the m.v. I-Fung, s.s. I-Ping, and s.s. Chi-Ping to the China Navigation Co., Ltd., as stated by Messrs. Parsons & Co. There have been lengthy negotiations concerning the sale of the m.v. I-Fung, but even this deal has not as yet been consummated. The Yangtze Rapid S.S. Company has never offered its I-Ping and Chi-Ping for sale to any other company, nor is any other person or company authorised to conduct such negotiations."

HAWKING DOGS FLESH IN STREET

A fine of $10, in default, 14 days' hard labour, was imposed by Mr. Q.A.A. Macfadyen at Central Magistrate's yesterday on Chung Ngan, aged 70, who was charged with hawking dog's flesh.

Defendant pleaded that he found a dead dog near Blake Pier and at the suggestion of someone nearby took it home. He later hawked the flesh because he was starving.

Sub-inspector Walsh, prosecuting, said he went to defendant's house and there found two cats' heads and the carcass of a dog. Apparently defendant had stolen them. He was trying to sell the flesh for human consumption when arrested.

MILITARY COUNCIL

NEW BODY TO CONTROL SEVEN PROVINCES

Canton, June 3. An important proposal by Marshal Chiang Kai-shek for the military consolidation of the South-western provinces is under discussion in Nanking—the formation of a branch military council in Kweichow, the capital of Kweichow. When established, this branch military council will become a rival to the present South-west Political Council in Canton which has among its members Kwangtung, Kwangsi, Yunnan, Kweichow and Szechuen.

Although political in name the South-west Political Council has decided many of the important military issues for Kwangtung and Kwangsi.

Kweichow province has just been reorganised by Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, who placed the troops of General Hsieh Yok in command of the anti-Communist expedition there. General Hsieh Yok is remembered for his long association with the Ironside troops. It is now suggested that the former Ironside Commander-in-chief, General Chang Fat-kui, should become the Chairman of the branch military council in Kweichow.

The provincial military authorities of seven provinces, Kwangtung, Kwangsi, Yunnan, Kweichow, Szechuen, Hunan and Fukien, will be invited to join as members.

Inter alia the Council will look after troop disposition in the south-western provinces and administer affairs in connection with the anti-Communist expedition.

Official announcement of the formation of this Council will be made some time this month.

Chang Fat-kui's Post

Canton, June 3. According to information collected from the local official circles General Chang Fat-kui, Commander of the ex-Ironside, will be offered a high military post in South-western China.

Another report also says that a military council similar to that in Peiping will be appointed by the Central Government for the control of military affairs in the seven provinces of South-western China including Kwangsi, Yunnan, Kweichow Kwangtung and Fukien. In this connection, it is believed that General Chang will be appointed to the Council.

General Chang Fat-kui is arriving at Hankow on his way to Szechuen, where he will hold an interview with Marshal Chiang Kai-shek.—Central News Agency.

SILVER BARTER PLAN OPPOSED SENATE BLOC WILL FIGHT DIES NO NEED FOR CHANGE OF U.S. POLICY

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, June 4, 12.15 p.m.)

Washington, June 3.

The powerful silver price-boosting faction of Congress will oppose Mr. Martin Dies' barter plan, which proposes that America shall offer a metal market to silver producing nations only in return for orders for America's surplus farm products.

Senator Alva B. Adams spoke strongly upon this matter to-day. He said he believed the present silver purchase plan was working as expected and had "raised prices and created a market for American goods." He did not believe it should be confused with other issues.

If America's silver programme were changed in the manner which Mr. Dies suggested it would tend to confuse other nations and the price of silver would decline "because others would gather the impression that we were attempting to force goods upon them."

Senator Adams indicated that his views were shared with other "Silver Senators."

Representative James Scrugham said he was not familiar with the details of Representative Dies' plan, but a cursory study of it proved to him that he could not favour it against the present policy.—United Press.

Washington, June 3.

Representative Martin Dies, Democrat of Texas, it was learned to-day, is planning to confer with President Roosevelt and the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, as soon as possible. The object of the conference will be to make an effort to obtain the immediate suspension of the United States silver purchasing policy and to substitute it with a plan of outright barter.

Mr. Dies has pointed out that at present the silver policy is of little apparent benefit to the agricultural export situation. He has contended that if the United States purchased silver solely on a barter basis, the American farmers would dispose of from two to three million bales of cotton during the next seven or eight months.

Under his new plan, he said, cotton would be bartered at twelve cents a pound but the price of silver could be raised considerably above the present level, possibly to $1.20.

Mr. Dies said: "The present plan is not helping American agriculture, which would be the sole purpose of my Bill if it became the law of the United States."

"Our exports are dropping steadily, but if we purchase silver solely on a barter basis, we should not only benefit the world silver situation but also bolster our export situation."

NO BENEFITS

Representative John A. Martin, Democrat of Colorado, to-day said that he did not believe that additional purchases of silver would prove to be of any benefit to domestic producers.

He pointed out that the United States silver mines, particularly those in Colorado, produce complex ores due to the existing low price of lead and copper.

Producers of these ores, he said, are unable to raise metals to money on the basis of sufficient to justify the operations, despite the fact that the ores contain silver.

Also he said that he did not believe that the present silver policy had benefited the agricultural export situation materially.—United Press.

BRITAIN ACCUSED BY ITALY

ALLEGEDLY AIDING ABYSSINIA

WAR MATERIAL SUPPLIED?

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, June 4, 12.30 p.m.)

Rome, June 4.

Giornale d'Italia to-day accuses Great Britain of aiding Abyssinia in her preparations for war by permitting the shipment of munitions and armaments from Kenya Colony into Ethiopian territory.

A fortnight ago the Italian press made similar accusations which were strongly denied in the House of Commons.

No exports of materials of war to Abyssinia had gone out of Britain for many months, the Government stated and none whatever since the critical frontier situation had arisen between Abyssinia and Italy.—United Press.

BORDER RAID

Rome, June 3.

Just when the Italo-Abyssinian quarrel, arising out of months' old clashes on the Italian-Somali frontier, seemed near to settlement, Ethiopian tribesmen have fought again with Italian outposts, thus seriously complicating the situation in which the League of Nations has tried to effect a settlement.

Thirty Italian subjects were killed in the Dankali region, Eritrea, on May 31, according to an official communiqué received here to-day, when an Italian and native police outpost was attacked by Abyssinians.

The raiders from the Abyssinian side of the border carried off some thousands of head of cattle.

MILITARY MEASURES

The military commander of the sector has taken the necessary measures to ensure the safety of Italian subjects.

A further serious incident is reported on the same day from a remote section of the Somali-Abyssinian frontier country, when twenty armed Abyssinians attacked an Italian outpost near Gubbe.

It is understood that at least ten Abyssinians were killed in this second clash.—Reuter.

Although the honour was not altogether unexpected, it is none the less welcome to us all in that it is a mark of His Majesty's appreciation not only of your Lordship's manifold services to the Empire but also of the dignity and importance of the high office your Lordship holds in the administration of that British Justice on which our Empire policy is founded. (By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, June 4, 12.30 p.m.)

St. Paul, June 3.

The notorious Volney Davis, wanted in connection with the Bremer and Weyerhaeuser kidnappings, was arrested in Chicago to-day and brought here by aeroplane.

He admitted to participating in the Bremer kidnapping. This case, one of last year's sensations, concerned Edward G. Bremer, St.

Paul banker, who was subsequently released.

Davis, who reportedly operated with Alvin Karpis and Harry Campbell, is believed to have been in the vicinity of Tacoma recently, and is being questioned here in connection with the kidnapping of 9-year-old George Weyerhaeuser, for whose release $200,000 was recently paid to gangsters by his family, richest timber operators in the country.

Davis has not been sentenced for the Bremer kidnapping. Meanwhile, machine-gun squads have barricaded all highways in the vicinity of Tacoma and are closely inspecting all passing automobiles, indicating the belief that the kidnapers of George Weyerhaeuser may still be in the vicinity of that city.—United Press.

Royal Empire Society Builds For Expansion

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, May 3, 2.12 a.m.)

London, June 3.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales to-day laid the foundation-stone of the new building of the Royal Empire Society in Northumberland Avenue, which cost £250,000. The Prince read a message from His Majesty the King, expressing the hope that the auspicious occasion would mark the opening of a new era of increasing prosperity.

Messages were also read from the Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the Dominions' Premiers and General Smuts.

The Prince of Wales, in the course of a speech, stressed the importance of the new building as a home for Overseas visitors, enabling Englishmen to return the abounding hospitality shown to Britons overseas. He also referred to the value of the quarter of a million volumes of the Society's library, which would be properly housed for the first time.

If it were true, as many thought, that the Empire was only at the beginning of its real mission to the world, said the Prince, then the part to be played by the Society in the future would be important. All would welcome the contribution which the Society would make to that understanding of the people which was nowhere so well exemplified as within the boundaries of the Empire.—Reuter Special.

SHOW CONFIDENCE IN BOUISSON

NEW ECONOMIC PARLEY MAY BE CALLED

Paris, June 3.

The financial world is showing confidence in the Bouisson Government, which faces Parliament tomorrow afternoon.

The demand for Government issues at the last opening of the Bourse so heavily exceeded supplies that a quarter of an hour elapsed before prices could be quoted. Then 4½ and 3 per cent. Renten rose over three points from the prices of May 31.

Thanks to the restoration of confidence, a large public loan is expected in the near future.

General currency stabilisation is the corner-stone of the policies of the Finance Minister, M. Caillaux. He is credited with the intention of shortly proposing the resumption of the London Economic Conference which adjourned in 1932.

"The recovery of international trade is in the forefront of my preoccupations," M. Caillaux told a newspaper conference. "Incidentally, it will singularly facilitate matters if the great currencies, other than francs, can shortly make stabilisation their common object."

The Finance Minister has already initiated certain reforms, including the decision to appoint two commissions, one of which will consider reorganisation of the Stock Exchange and the other elaborate means for making expenditure correspond to revenue.

DRAIN ON GOLD

The recent drain on gold held by France has now ceased and an early reduction of the bank rate, which is now six per cent., is expected.

An official statement issued by the Ministry of Finance confirms that M. Caillaux favours international stabilisation on a basis of the present parity of the franc, but suggests that he is too preoccupied to deal with a stabilisation conference at present, as he is absorbed with balancing the Budget and maintaining the present rate of the franc.

The statement adds that M. Caillaux does not consider that he should take the initiative in calling a conference to discuss stabilisation.—Reuter.

Gold Clause Annulment

CANAL COMPANY NOT AFFECTED

Paris, June 3.

The Suez Canal Company considers itself unaffected by the decree issued by the Egyptian Government on May 2, annulling the gold clause in international contracts, declared the Marquis de Vogue, presiding at the annual meeting of the company to-day.

He pointed out that transit dues can be collected in any currency the company may choose and the company would not hesitate to collect in a currency other than gold francs if it thinks fit.

Further, there was no gold clause in the contract for payment of dividends to shareholders and debenture holders. They were payable on an international franc basis, at a twentieth part of a gold louis.

The company, moreover, holds that the decree of May 2 has no retroactive effect on past payments.

The Marquis added that the company would like to aid ship-owners by a reduction of tariffs, but until the position with regard to the Egyptian Government's decree was cleared up, the company could not see its way clear to the surrendering of any source of revenue.—Reuter.

ATLANTIC RECORD SMASHED

New York, June 3.

The giant French liner Normandie established a new record for a trans-Atlantic crossing on her maiden voyage. She passed Ambrose light-ship, at the entrance to New York harbour, at 10 o'clock this morning (Eastern time), covering the 3,192 miles from Southampton in 106 hours and 58 minutes, her average speed being 29.68 knots.

The previous best time established was that of the German liner Bremen, 110 hours and 27 minutes. The Italian liner Rex established a record of 109 hours and 58 minutes for the crossing from Gibraltar.

The Normandie's speed on Sunday and Monday averaged the splendid figure of 31.55 knots.

The Normandie docked at 3.25 p.m. amid pandemonium created by a crowd of over 100,000 along the waterfront, which brought all traffic to a standstill.

Two fireboats, playing jets of water like fountains, accompanied the Normandie to dock, while aeroplanes equipped with gigantic amplifiers cruised overhead and sent out the strains of the "Marseillaise."

Madame Leburn, wife of the President of France, was the first to leave the ship. She drove to her hotel escorted by motorcycle police sounding their sirens.

The passengers who made the trip across were most enthusiastic over the Normandie's performance.—Reuter.

TRIBUTE TO
HONEST"EUROPEAN DANGERS

Belief in the integrity of Herr Hitler was expressed by the Mar-
quess of Lothian in an address
given in Edinburgh recently.

Lord Lothian, who has recently returned from Germany, said he did not think people in this country
realised what Germany had been
through since 1914.

At the end of the war mankind
had had a very unbalanced sense
of proportion as the result of years
of wartime propaganda, and the
Treaty of Versailles, as most students of it now realised, had been
a very severe one, imposed by
force, with practically no consultation with the representatives of Germany.

Germany was now, potentially, an extremely dangerous State. She was demanding equality. It was very difficult to see how you could possibly deny equality to a great nation. But equality for Germany
meant insecurity for France; the
population of Germany was 70
millions, and of France 40 millions.
That was the reason why France
had so persistently refused to grant
equality to Germany unless given
security in some other way.

The whole structure of peace in Europe had vanished since the declaration of Herr Hitler a few weeks ago that he was going to re-establish conscription on the basis of an army of 36 divisions, consisting of 550,000 men—a good deal
larger than the French Army—
with equality in the air, and a Navy
equal to 35 per cent. of the British Navy.

QUESTIONS FOR EUROPE

Other questions which Germany
was going to ask of Europe included the demilitarisation of the Rhine; and the future of Austria,
which was sometimes called the
percussion cap of Europe; and the
question, which more nearly concerned us, of whether Germany was entitled to have any colonies, or
was to remain exclusively confined in the restricted area in which she
was confined in Europe to-day.

Lord Lothian) because they were
questions which were more and
more going to be brought home to
people by events. Could we make these adjustments peacefully, or
era of power politics, when people
made alliances under the threat of
war, eventually ending in war?
That was the irrepressible issue
now rising in Europe. Fortunately,
he thought, the British Government had managed to follow the
middle road, and had acted as interpreter and mediator so far between
the two sides.

By far the most important
speech to mankind delivered since August 4, 1914, was likely to be
that delivered by Herr Hitler a fortnight or so hence, when he
would tell us what was his answer
to the negotiations taking place,
and the declaration to be made by
the Prime Minister. That speech would give indications as to whether, now that Germany had
got equality—and it was impossible
to deny her equality—we were going to revitalise the League of Nations, and study those and other
very difficult problems on the basis
of equality by sitting round a table,
or whether Europe was going to begin that realignment into two armed camps, the ultimate outcome
of which had in the past been war.

THE AIR MENACE

Speaking of the air menace, Lord
Lothian said that the great danger of the air was that, if the air weapon with an unquestioned superiority fell into the hands of a fool

or a knave who used it with the
utmost ruthlessness, it would be directed, not so much at the military and naval forces of neighbours, as at the civilian population
in order to infuse such terror and
despair that that nation would
throw up its hands to escape unrestricted bombing. That was the danger. That was why all parties
supported the Government in saying that unless they could get early
agreement with Germany they would insist on having an Air
Force as powerful as hers.

He was not at all unhelpful that
we would get agreement, and satisfactory agreement. He did not take the sinister view of Germany
that a great many people took. He believed Hitler was a perfectly
honest and straight person, anxious
for the limitation of armaments
provided Germany had equality, and
prepared to abolish bombers or any offensive weapon which everybody
else abolished.

Once ratios were settled it would
be easy to cut down expenditure on
results would follow from the
negotiations which he understood
had now begun, but it was essential
that people should realise that we
were moving out of a relatively placid world into a very dangerous
period.

It would be determined by November next whether the League
of Nations was going to survive in Europe or whether there was to be
a realignment into two great armed
camps, because November next was
the date on which the resignation
of Germany from the League became effective.

BIG SALARIES
IN U.S.PLENTY GET MORE THAN ROOSEVELTCONFIDENTIAL
INFORMATION

Washington, May 26.
Upward of 100 Americans draw bigger salaries than the $75,000 annual pay check of President Roosevelt.

Reports on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission present an impressive array of big money executives.

The depression may still be riding the country but the sworn reports at the S.E.C., in addition to the really big salaries, show hundreds of corporation executives and remuneration ranging from $15-000 to $50,000 a year.

The reports on file at the S.E.C.
show that among others:

Mr. E. R. Crawford, Pittsburgh,
President McKeesport Tin Plate
Co., last year drew $173,750, and Mr. G. V. Parking, vice-president of the same concern drew $124,166;

Mr. William B. Warner, New York, President McCall Corp., magazine publishers, drew $135-153;

Mr. Francis B. Davis, chairman
U. S. Rubber Co., was paid
$125,000;

Mr. Edward G. Seubert, President Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, got along on $117,500

Drawing $100,000 a year each were: Mr. George Horace Lepimer, editor, the Saturday Evening Post; Mr. William E. Lewis, Illinois Industrialist, and Mr. Francis H.
Brownell, Chairman, American Smelting & Refining Co.

Under the $100,000 mark, but topping the President's pay, were:
Mr. Hiram S. Ravitz, Cleveland,
President Industrial Rayon Co.,
$96,441; Mr. Leasing J. Rosenwald,
Chicago, Chairman Sears Roebuck
& Co., $85,139; Mr. Robert E.
Wood, Chicago, President Sears
Roebuck & Co., $81,818; Mr. R. J.
Quigley, New York, President Howe
Sound Co., $77,876; Mr. Alexander Dow, President Detroit Edison Co., $75,715.

FAIR WAGE

During the five years ending last January George Gordon Crawford, former president of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., Pittsburgh, drew $250,000 annually in a salary of $100,000 a year and minimum annual bonuses of $150,000.

While these reports have been made public there are scores of others to be filed which are expected to bring the total of above $75,000 salaries to 100. For the present other reports are being kept confidential, including the salaries of executives of such concerns as:

S. S. Kresge Co., General Motors, Standard Oil of New Jersey, United States Realty & Improvement Co., Community Water Service Co., American Ship Building Co., The North American Co., North American Edison Co., Central States Power & Light Co., Inter-State Power Co., and Utilities Power & Light Co.

SMALLER MONEY

Receivers of salaries in the neighbourhood of $50,000 annually included Mr. John C. Sterling, New York, vice-president of the McCall
Corp., Mr. F. W. Means, Chicago,
President of the Chicago Towel
Co., and several others.

In the mere $50,000 a year class were: Mr. Arde Dulova, New York, General Manager, The Dulova Watch Co., Mr. O. D. Donnell, Findlay, O., President of the Ohio Oil Co., Mr. Clarence M.
Wooley, New York, Board chairman of the American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corp., Mr.
Roland J. Hamilton, New York,
president of the American Radiator
Co.—United Press.

EUROPEAN SENT TO PRISONPOSED AS CUSTOMS
EMPLOYEE

Frederic Cyril Goodman, aged 29 years, unemployed, residing at No. 7 Chuk Loong Street, was sentenced to two months' hard labour by Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, when he appeared on remand on a charge of obtaining various sums of money, totalling $50, from Yeung Kwai-po, of No. 20 Peel Street, between January 12 and 15, by falsely pretending that he was employed by the Chinese Customs. Defendant had pleaded guilty to the charge when he was first produced, before Mr. Schofield yesterday.

Inspector J. Fender said he understood the $50 had been refunded to the complainant. The defendant had a previous conviction for the same offence, and on the last occasion there were two charges of obtaining $25 from each of the complainants. Regarding the present charge, the defendant was introduced to the complainant by a friend of both in January last. Defendant told the complainant he was employed in the Chinese Customs, and was in a position to get him a job as a tide waiter. He asked complainant for $50 for an introduction fee. The complainant paid him $30 on January 12, and $10 each on January 14 and 15. The defendant then told him he would have to wait three months before receiving word from the Nan-

Two Cars Left UNATTENDED
For leaving his car, No. 890, unattended in Des Voeux Road Central, outside the Bank of Canton Building for 55 minutes, from 9 a.m. to 9.55 a.m. on May 20, M. Morant was fined $5 by Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning. A representative of the defendant admitted the summons.

OWNERS APPEAR IN COURT
Sub-inspector Brittain said the defendant went to his office expecting his driver to come and take the car away, but the driver who had been given the day off the previous day, sent him a letter later saying he could not get back to take the car. The de-

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET UPWARD YESTERDAY

New York, June 3. The following reports on the New York Stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz:

The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market:—Stocks to-day were upward with highly selective buying, centring in Chrysler and Anaconda shares. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were dull, but prices were moderately improved. Bonds were higher, notably Sugar issues, based on the recovery in sugar futures.

S. O. & P. New York office cables: Prices have moderately improved, with the volume of business reduced, under the leadership of utility shares and good grade industrial issues. Mill activity is estimated at 39.5 per cent. of capacity, as against 42.3 per cent. the previous week.

New York and Chicago commodity reports received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz:—Cotton: Conflicting rumours regarding Government agricultural policies are causing an erratic and indefinite trend.

Wheat: A forecast of the weather indicates favourable conditions throughout the Belt. Buying was slack. The visible supply of wheat has shown a decrease of 1,148,000 bushels.

Corn: Receipts were on the light side. Cash corn was firm. The visible supply has decreased by 126,000 bushels.

Rubber: Reports of a new Dutch tax on the entire output of rubber are encouraging. Dutch interests are not selling. The primary markets are firm.

A GERMAN TRIUMPH

The fact that the United States plan for an air mail service round the world will employ dirigibles on its first link, by arrangement between American and German postal officials, again calls to mind the fact that the unhappy failure of other nations to conquer the skies with lighter-than-air machines, still leaves Germany without serious rivals in this particular realm of aviation. With its globe-circling Graf Zeppelin still proudly aloft, and with another big airship nearly completed, the Germans have experienced no such disaster as those which befell America's Macon, Akron and Shenandoah, Britain's R-38 and R-101, France's Dixmude, and Italy's Roma and Italia. The first country ever to build giant airships, Germany remains the only one which plans regularly to use them for passenger, mail and freight services to distant parts of the world. It was only after long waiting for the necessary money that Count Zeppelin, the dirigibles' inventor, was enabled actually to construct them. For a time during the war, they played an important part. As carriers of bombs against English towns, they were not so successful, because many of them were shot down by heavier-than-air craft. But they played a considerable role for a time as scout ships for the German high seas fleet. All in all, Germany used some 79 airships during the World War. Twenty-six were destroyed by the Allies, 14 were lost in storms, 12 were wrecked by explosions and 15 were put out of commission for various other reasons. By the time the war was over, the Germans were well convinced that airships could play small part in wars, because they were so easily vulnerable to swift aeroplanes circling over them. But they were still convinced of their use as commercial liners. The Bodensee, constructed at Friedrichshafen after the war, made over 100 trips, 78 being the 460 miles between

NOTES OF THE DAY

It would be hard to recall a time in history when political dogma has played more definite part in the affairs of men than it does to-day. In Europe, especially, various dictatorships have evolved political creeds leaving "no hinge nor loop to hang a doubt on." In these countries one can no longer say, with Tennyson, that "there lives more faith in honest doubt, believe me, than in half the creeds." Whole populations are being reared as adherents of dogmatic creeds. In many respects the Russian political creed is more aggressive than that of any other dictatorship. It is true that Russia's present rulers do not contemplate the immediate addition of new territory, that they have dismissed the prospect of immediate interference with the internal affairs of other countries. They do not emphasize it so strongly, perhaps, but they insist that "world revolution" remains to-day, as it has been from the beginning, a cardinal tenet of the Bolshevik creed, and they do not let a day pass without reminding workers, peasants and students, even the smallest children, that they are the "vanguard of world revolution, leading the proletarians of all countries to final victory over their bourgeois masters."

CAN'T BE OVERLOOKED

This is a new form of preparedness which statesmen can no more overlook than they can disregard military preparations. Perhaps Russia's present rulers intend only to arouse in their people the enthusiasm necessary to build up a backward country, to encourage them to endure present discomforts uncomplainingly. But results are close to chauvinism. Similar preparedness programmes are under way in all European dictatorships. In fact, it is in the roots of dictatorship to mass public sentiment so solidly behind dogma as to make reason an unimportant factor in settling either domestic or international disputes. Russia simply offers the most obvious example of a danger to which supporters of democracy should ever be alert.

TO-DAY'S MOTORING HINT

DRIVING METHODS

There is much more in driving a motor car than regulating its speed and controlling the steering. Bad driving habits may seriously damage the mechanism.

For example, it is not generally realised that control methods affect the rear axle. If the clutch is allowed to engage with a jerk, as often happens when changing down on a steep gradient, it imposes a very severe strain on the final drive, bearings, and cross shafts.

The strain is considerably greater than these parts are constructed to withstand.

Cornering at speed also makes for more rapid wear, and if indulged in constantly may result in a fractured part. If the clutch is badly adjusted and does not disengage completely, an excessive strain is imposed on the rear axle whenever the gear is changed.

Any mistake in gear-changing re-acts adversely upon the rear axle, so it is worth while practising changing until perfect.

Friedrichshafen and Berlin. Then the Allies stepped in and she was handed over to Italy. Her sister ship, the Nordstern, was given to France under the same conditions in 1921. In payment of certain reparations due to America, the company built the ship known as the Los Angeles. She was completed in the autumn of 1924 and made the first journey across the Atlantic. She was turned over to the U.S. Navy after she had been flown about 5,000 miles in a little over 100 hours and still had fuel left for a further flight of 30 hours. This feat gave the Germans a vision to which they have stuck—that of regular airship service across the ocean. The result was the building of the famous Graf Zeppelin, which was completed in 1928. Her record is, to date, unsurpassed. She has never had a serious accident. She has flown nearly a half million miles, carried over 17,500 passengers and 55 tons of freight and mails. Last year she was employed in a regular service between Friedrichshafen and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. She left respectively from the German and Brazilian cities every fortnight. Her schedule was maintained as regularly as an ocean steamer. And she is still in service to-day, a tribute to German perseverance and engineering skill.

LINKING HONGKONG AND CANTON

By A. EDDY

Experience shows that communications are a factor of paramount importance in promoting trade relations between communities, and the most concrete expression of the desire of Hongkong and Canton to inaugurate an era of closer friendship and commercial intercourse would be the speedy construction of a motor road between the two cities.

Incredible as it may seem, yet the fact is that Hongkong and Canton are the only two cities of similar size in the world situated within 100 miles of each other, which today are not connected by a motor road. Search the map of China or the five continents as you will, and you will not produce evidence to the contrary. This would be a circumstance easy to understand if the two cities were situated on the opposite slopes of the Himalayan mountain ranges, but there is no geographic obstruction of any kind which would make the building of such a road even difficult from an engineering point of view.

It is true that the two cities can easily communicate, thanks to a highly efficient railway and modern steamship lines, but there is comparatively very little of what could be called pleasure travel on either the railway or boats. The writer who has opportunity to meet tourists every day can cite many instances when the Canton trip was cancelled by individual travellers and groups who had had too many steamer and rail journeys on their way around the world and who preferred to make the Canton excursion by automobile.

Then there are many motor car owners in Hongkong who have never visited Canton. Is it possible to doubt that they would not make an occasional trip, even if out of pure curiosity, to the most colourful and progressive city in China, if there were a motor road between the two cities?

Most European residents in Hongkong very seldom visit Canton unless on business. All these people represent dormant travel forces which will be brought to life by a motor road between here and Canton. That the beaches in Hongkong would attract a good number of visitors from the neighbouring city is a foregone conclusion. Yes, the railway and the steamer are there, but can you compare the advantages of stepping into your own car and driving from your own home straight to a hotel in Hongkong, as against the necessity of riding to the station with family and baggage, waiting for the train or steamer and going through the same ceremony again at the other end, before reaching your final destination? It is not so much the money part as inconveniences like these which keep people from travelling.

In addition to overseas visitors and automobile owners in the two cities, no doubt there are individuals and groups who would with pleasure jump into a hire car and drive over to Canton or Hongkong for occasional week-ends and impromptu excursions. Not only would the railway and the steamship lose no traffic, but it is probable that they would gain by having a number of hire car travellers who cannot afford to keep the motor car waiting, and would return by rail or boat.

That a strong bus competition would arise as a result of a motor road is sure and certain, but it is not at all improbable that the additional volume of business opened up by the buses serving as feeders, to the railway would in a way compensate for the losses suffered in other directions as shown in the case of the newly constructed motor road between Shanghai and Hangchow.

An investigation of the existing road facilities discloses the fact that all that is needed to effect a motor connection between Hongkong and Canton is to build a motor road about a mile and a half long each on both sides of the boundary at Shum-Chun from where it is possible to drive to Canton via Wai-chow. The road is of course primitive and roundabout, but it would be at least a beginning until it is improved and the necessary short cuts or a more direct road via Shek-Lung are constructed.

What is true about the roads' mobilising dormant travel forces applies equally to airway connections. It takes about 45 minutes to fly from Kai Tak to Canton, and allowing another 45 minutes to reach the aerodromes at the point of departure and arrival, an air-trip would be practicable in 90 minutes or 3 hours for the return trip. Business men are obliged to lose two days if they want to transact business in Canton because it is almost impossible to accomplish anything within a working day when the greater part of that day is spent on the train. An air service would enable busy executives to do useful work in the neighbouring city within a day and would land them in their own bed on the night of the same day.

Until the advent of an air service, arrangements could be made between the Chinese Post Office and the local authorities for a regular air mail service between Hongkong and Canton. The day before the departure of the plane from Canton the mail could be sent to Canton by the afternoon train or by the night boat and forwarded the next day by the planes of the China National Aviation Corporation to points along the entire East Coast of China as far as Tientsin and Peking, and the entire length of the Yangtze between Shanghai and Chengtu; by the air service of the Eurasia Aviation Corporation direct to Hankow and Peking and other points North-West, and by the planes of the South-Western Aviation Corporation to Kwantung and Hainan. These three airways have been functioning without a hitch for some time and can be instrumental in speeding up business between Hongkong and China. The question deserves the attention of both Hongkong and Canton and it cannot be doubted that quicker communications between Hongkong, occupying a key position from a world shipping point of view, and Canton, serving as a transit centre for South China and points beyond, will be profitable to both.

I understand that as soon as these air services began to

The Very Idea!

POT-POURRI

The railway officials here are now more convinced than ever that all Englishmen are mad (says a recent news item from Venice.)

Hardly had the Orient express left here one afternoon when it was brought to a standstill by a violent ringing of the alarm. Conductors, ticket collectors, and Fascist guards ran to see what had happened, and found an Englishman calmly lifting his luggage off the rack. He had got into the train for Constantinople in mistake for the London express, he explained.

Smilingly he paid the $10 penalty for "Misuse" of the alarm, thanked the officials for stopping the train, and just managed to catch his proper express for London.

HARD TIMES

Lady of the House—"Why, what are you?"
Beggar—"A window-box weeder, ma'am."

CLARK'S GARCE

In a recent issue of The Factor's Clerk, the official organ of house factor's clerks of Scotland, the following "Garce for our annual dinner" was suggested:—

Some hae jaws that canna cause a gumboll at a banquet;
But we hae jaws that never pause,
Sae let the Lord be thankit.

ODD NAMES

Conversation at the tea party drifted into talk about odd names of people. One lady said that in her locality there lived in a fair few years ago folk whose surnames were:—Bull, Lamb, Cow, Goate, Kidd.

Amusement was heightened by another lady recalling that she once knew of a building where on one flat there were Brown and White; next flat, Black and Green; and in a main floor flat Gray.

NASTY!

"My poor husband was a wonderful artist," sighed the landlady as she hacked at the picture, "and always said he found inspiration in my cooking."
"A sculptor, I presume," said the gloomy boarder, surveying his bent fork.

MORE HOWLERS

Vent is what you have to give your feelings now and again.
Brats are the offspring of brutes.
Solar plexus is Latin for sun-burn.

A doctrine is a lady physician.
"An osteopath is one of the new traffic lanes."

WEEDS!

A church notice which might have been better expressed:
Subject.
Weeds in the World's Garden.
A very large attendance is anticipated.

ONE WAY

Mrs. Jones—"Dear me! The conversation is flagging dreadfully. What can we do to amuse these people?"

Mr. Jones—"I don't know, unless we go into the other room for a while to give them a chance to talk about us."

REAL SCOTS

We held a round-table competition the other evening (writes a correspondent), the test being the production of samples of laconic conversation. The following was easily the most successful entry.

It is a conversation in Scots dialect, between a merchant and a woman about to buy woollen goods:—

She—"Oo?"
He—"Ay, oo."
She—"A' oo?"
He—"Ay, a' oo."
She—"A' ae oo?"
He—"Aye, a' ae oo."

The competitor translated his entry as follows:—The lady wished to know whether the garment was of wool, whether it was all wool, and whether it was all of one wool.

FINISHED!

Here is an example of the laconic style which occurred in a series of official messages.

According to a popular Air Force legend, they were dispatched by wireless to the Air Ministry from an R.A.F. base, when a new seaplane was being handed over to Finland.

The messages ran as follows:—
12.31—Finnish seaplane up.
12.33—Finnish seaplane down.
12.35—Finnish, Finnish seaplane.
That told the whole story of the disaster.

GERMAN DELEGATES IN LONDON

NO AIR PACT DISCUSSION

London, June 3. The Anglo-German naval conversations opened this afternoon, when Herr Joachim von Ribbentrop, Special Commissioner for Disarmament Questions appointed by Chancellor Hitler to act for the German Government, saw the Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the Foreign Minister, Sir John Simon, and the First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Bolton Eyre-McNeill. However, on this occasion the German diplomat is not to talk of disarmament, but of the proposed increase of the German Navy.

The conversations will be opened formally by Sir John Simon at the Foreign Office to-morrow morning. It is expected that the conversations will be completed by the end of the week.

Only naval topics are likely to be discussed. There is no intention on either side of raising any other issue, and certainly not the proposals for a Western European air pact.—Reuter.

REPLIES EXAMINED

London, June 3. Replies of the German Government to inquiries made by the British Ambassador in Berlin for more precise information on several matters dealt with in Herr Hitler's recent speech, have now been received in London, and are receiving the close attention of the British Government. The German Government memorandum on the bearing of the recent Franco-Soviet agreement on Locarno Treaties is also being examined by appropriate Government departments.—British Wireless.

KING LEADS PARADE

WILDLY CHEERED BY CROWDS IN MALL

London, June 3. Dark clouds overhung the Horse Guards Parade to-day before the Trooping of the Colours, but a few minutes after His Majesty the King had taken his position, the sun poured out upon the brilliant scene.

Unequaled anywhere else in the world, this ceremony of the Trooping of the Colours, which never varies, was carried out to-day with a precise perfection. It lasted over an hour.

His Majesty took the salute. But the greatest thrill of the day was to come when His Majesty led the pick of the British Army along the Mall, amidst the thunderous cheers of a mighty concourse of people.—Reuter.

U.S. EXECUTIVES PLAN TRIP

MAY VISIT MANILA FOR INAUGURATION

Washington, June 3. Mr. John Garner, President of the Senate and Vice-President of the United States, Mr. Joseph Byrns, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and Mr. George Dern, Minister of War, are considering travelling to Manila to attend the inauguration of the Philippine Government.

Mr. Garner is favourably disposed to the suggestion and would probably be the chief official delegate. Mr. Byrns, as a representative of the House of Representatives, is eager to go if conditions permit.

Having conferred with President Roosevelt, Mr. Byrns said today he did not expect Congress would adjourn until August 1.—United Press.

THE RHODESIAN RIOTS

EIGHT MORE NATIVES SUCCUMB

Broken Hill, June 3. Eight more natives have succumbed to injuries caused during the riots in Northern Rhodesia, bringing the death-roll to fourteen.

The copper belt has been quiet over the week-end, but the troops have not yet been withdrawn.—Reuter Special.

PROBATE ACTION CHINESE CUSTOM QUOTED

A lawful daughter and a lawfully adopted son of the same family were parties in a probate action before His Honour the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, at the Supreme Court this morning when the adopted son, Tse Wai-san, alias Tse Fuk-tseung, alias Si Wai-san, claimed the grant of letters of administration of the estate of Mrs. Der Do-yau, alias Tse Leung-shi, alias Leung Yuk, late of 659 Nathan Road, married woman, deceased.

Mr. Eldon Potter, K.C., instructed by Mr. G. S. Hugh-Jones, of Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist, appeared for the plaintiff, and the defendant, Tse Chun-tai, alias Chung Tse-shi, the lawful daughter of Mrs. Der Do-yau, was not legally represented.

At the outset, Mr. Potter said he had received a letter from Messrs. Leo d'Almada and Co. to the effect that they had received no further instructions from the defendant to contest the claim. Under these circumstances, said Mr. Potter, he would like his Lordship to enquire from the defendant if she would like to withdraw.

The defendant replied that the reason why she did not engage legal assistance was because she was financially embarrassed.

His Lordship then decided to carry on with the case.

THE CLAIM

The statement of claim was: (1) Plaintiff is a stationer of 117 Argyle Street, ground floor, Kowloon.

(2) Defendant is a married woman of 17 Yunnan Lane, Kowloon.

(3) Mrs. Der Do-yau, alias Tse Leung-shi, alias Leung Yuk, died intestate on November 12, 1931. She was the wife of one Der Do-yau who died intestate on August 30, 1932. Both husband and wife were Chinese.

(4) Plaintiff is the lawfully adopted son of Mrs. Der Do-yau and of her husband, and, as such, claims the grant of letters of administration of the estate of Mrs. Der Do-yau, deceased.

(5) Plaintiff denies that defendant is interested in the said estate.

Mr. Potter said he would call the Hon. Dr. S. W. T'so to testify that that according to Chinese law and custom, when a son was lawfully adopted by the husband he was also the lawfully adopted son of the wife. The defendant had previously taken out an action against the plaintiff asking for payment to her of certain property of the father. In her statement of claim she admitted that the plaintiff was the lawfully adopted son. That was her case which happened to be settled because she was given such a share as considered lawful by the law of China. According to Chinese law and custom when a daughter was married before the death of the adopter, the estate would go to the son. In this case, the wife died first and her property passed to the husband. Upon the latter's death the property, Mr. Potter submitted, should go to the son who was lawfully adopted.

CHINESE CUSTOM

The Hon. Dr. S. W. T'so said that according to the law and custom of China, the property of the wife passed to the husband upon her death. The fact of the existence of children made no difference.

Mr. Potter: The father dies leaving a lawfully adopted son and a lawful daughter, to which of these two does the father's property pass?

Witness: To the lawfully adopted son. When the daughter is married she has no interest in the estate, but when she is unmarried she is entitled to maintain.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

IT IS ONLY WHEN THE RICH ARE SICK THAT THEY FULLY FEEL THE IMPOTENCE OF WEALTH.—Colton.

The forthcoming wedding is announced of Mr. John Wilson, master mariner (retired), of 416 Hennessy Road, and Miss Minnie McCaslin, of the same address.

A woman, Wong Yee, 37, was bound over by Mr. Macfadyen in the Central Magistrate's court this morning when she admitted a charge of the possession of 116 Macon, 70, pin letters tickets. Inspector Smith said she was arrested on information. She had a child with her at the time.

One month's hard labour was passed on Ma Siu-on, 18, unemployed, when he pleaded guilty before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistrate's court this morning to a charge of stealing a leather purse, a leather wrist watch strap and two pawn tickets, the property of Lau Ching, 16, a house cooie, at No. 7 Feking Road, first floor. Detective Sergeant Goddard stated complainant went to Canton some time ago and returned yesterday, when he found the things were missing. Enquiries were made and it was found that defendant had pawned the purse for 30 cents, and had sold the strap to a fook at the same address.

Employment Improves NOTICEABLE IN ALL MAIN INDUSTRIES

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1931. Received, June 4, 5.15 a.m.)

London, June 3. Latest figures to be issued show that there has been a further improvement in employment since the middle of April. This is particularly noticeable in the principal industries, especially in buildings, public works, engineering, cotton, hosiery and the engineering distributive trades.

There has also been a large increase in temporary employment among Yorkshire and Midlands miners.

The unemployed on May 20 numbered, 2,044,752, being an increase of 292 compared with April 15, but a decrease of 45,629 when compared with the same date last year.—Reuter Special.

OTHER FIGURES

London, June 3. The Ministry of Labour estimates that on May 20 there were approximately 10,354,000 insured persons, aged 16 to 64, in employment in Britain. This was 14,000 more than at April 15, 1935, and 14,000 more than on May 14, 1934.

At the same date, the number of unemployed persons on the registers in Britain totalled 2,044,752 comprising 1,630,572 men, 65,120 boys, 293,662 women, and 55,398 girls.

The total was 292 more than on April 15, but 45,629 less than the year before. The number of boys and girls on the registers increased by 10,300 during the period under review, due to registration of juveniles who left school at Easter.—British Wireless.

STILL QUIET IN TIENTSIN

NO FURTHER CAUSE FOR ALARM

Tientsin, June 4.

While no fresh development is evident in connection with the recent Japanese demarche in North China, the removal of the seat of the Hebei Provincial Government to Paotingfu is proceeding.

General Yu Hauch-chung, Governor of Hebei Province, left for Paotingfu last evening to direct the accommodating of various Government departments in the new buildings.

tenance and a dowry for her marriage. In the present case the defendant, having been married long before the death of the father, she has no interest in the estate at all. If the son had been lawfully adopted by the father he is also lawfully adopted by the wife.

Mr. Potter then intimated that should his Lordship give judgment in his favour he would ask him to make an order to show that defendant had no interest in the estate. The reason for this, he said, was to prevent her from taking out any further action.

The defendant said that in her mother's life time, her mother had told her, in the presence of her adopted brother (the plaintiff) that when she died she would leave her the property.

His Lordship gave judgment for the plaintiff with costs, and made an order showing that defendant had no interest in the estate.

DOUGLAS S.S. CO. MEETING

DIVIDEND AFTER MANY YEARS

DIFFICULT TIMES

Shareholders of the Douglas Steamship Company, Ltd., are to receive a dividend of five per cent. after having had no return for their investment over a long period, announced the Chairman, Mr. S. T. Williamson, at the annual general meeting held at noon to-day.

The falling off in passenger and cargo revenue was continuing, said the Chairman, with the added handicap of further heavy depreciation of coastal exchanges and higher tariffs. Nor could he say that future prospects were any brighter.

In addition to the Chairman there were present, the Hon. Sir William Shenton and Mr. M. T. Johnson (Consulting Committee), Mr. N. V. A. Croucher, Mr. T. Ramsey, Mr. W. E. Kirby, Mr. C. Bernard Brown, Mr. Chun Wing-kei, Mr. Hui Chau-nam and Mr. C. L. Farmer (Secretary).

The Chairman said:—Gentlemen,—As it is past the time for which this meeting was called, I will ask the Secretary to read the notice convening the meeting and the auditors' report. As the report and statement of accounts have been in your hands for the prescribed period, I will with your permission take them as read.

I am pleased that your Consulting Committee and General Managers consider the accounts now before you for the year 1934 justify the recommendation of a dividend of 5 per cent. being paid out for the year under review, and which I trust meets with your approval, as shareholders have not received any return on their investment in this Company for quite a long period.

NEW TONNAGE

After paying all running expenses, docking charges, premia of insurance and all allowances, the profit on the year's working is $194,337.57. After writing off the sum of $104,128, for depreciation on the Company's properties and providing for other charges, shown in the Profit and Loss Account, there remains a balance of $27,438.67 to which must be added the balance of $12,357.03 brought forward from last year. Subject to approval of shareholders it is proposed to deal with this total of $39,795.70 as follows:—To pay a Dividend of 5 per cent. ($2,500 per share), amounting to $50,000; to carry forward to next account, $19,795.70.

At the last annual meeting of the shareholders I said that serious consideration must be given to the acquisition of further tonnage in the near future, and with this in view the s.s. Haitian was purchased and is now in commission. The vessel before purchase was engaged on a high class passenger run between New York and Bermuda; but before deciding on the purchase, the General Managers prepared designs for a new vessel and obtained prices for the building.

The capital outlay, however, was such that the General Managers did not feel justified in ordering a new vessel, as the estimated return on the capital, under present conditions did not warrant the risk of such an undertaking, so they adopted what they considered the more prudent policy and purchased the s.s. Haitian and are satisfied with the purchase, as the vessel is in extremely good condition and well found for the carrying of first, second and deck passengers and should become very popular on the Coast. Lloyds 100 A.1. classification has been maintained by the vessel completing her special survey here and a Hongkong passenger licence to comply with the new Simla rules which are expected to shortly come into force here has been taken out. The purchase transaction is also covered in the accounts before you.

FALLING OFF

At last year's meeting I reported a decided falling off in passengers and cargo during the second half of the year 1933, and regret to say this state of affairs continued during the year 1934 with the added handicap of further heavy depreciation of coastal exchanges and higher tariffs, which are reflected in the reduced earnings as compared with last year.

Allowing for a possible continuance of these factors, your Consulting Committee and General Managers considered it prudent to make provision for depreciation which accounts for the sum of $104,128, being so allocated. All accounts shown as outstanding in the accounts have since been collected.

As I cannot say that future prospects appear any brighter, economies wherever possible and practicable will continue to be studied carefully.

I do not think there is anything more in the Accounts I can com-

SECONDER'S SPEECH

Mr. Croucher:—I have much pleasure in seconding the report and accounts as presented and to congratulate all those responsible for the good results made during a very trying period. The payment of a dividend of 5 per cent., the first for over ten years, reflects the many improvements and economies which have been effected by our General Managers. It was my pleasure to inspect the Company's latest acquisition, "Haitian," purchased during the year, and I am glad to see she is now on the run after undergoing Lloyd's special survey and also being in compliance with the requirements regarding the Hongkong Passenger Certificate, and the latest Simla rules. I feel sure the policy of our General Managers in putting such a boat on the run which is a decided advance on anything now trading on the coast, will receive the approval of the shareholders, as such a boat was badly needed from a Passengers' point of view and I hope she will have many years of profitable trading. Before closing I should like to thank the staff both floating and shore for their loyal co-operation during the year.

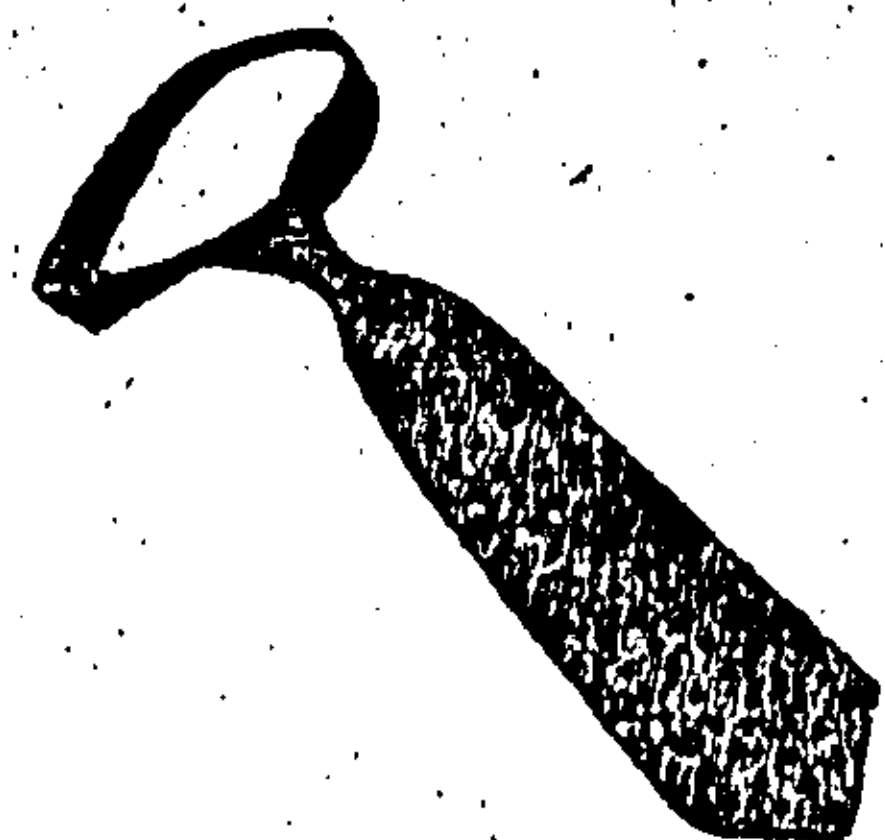

Mr. Kirby: Mr. Chairman, at the annual meeting in 1932 Mr. Croucher expressed the opinion that the figure $164,000 outstanding was too much for three ships. I am wondering whether Mr. Croucher maintains his opinion in that respect. I do not know whether I heard you say that all accounts have been collected; is there anything prior to 1933?

The Chairman: No. They have been collected.

The report and accounts were then adopted.

Sir Robert Ho Tung, the Hon. Sir William Shenton and Mr. Johnson were re-elected to the Consulting Committee and Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Matthews and Messrs. Linstead and Davis were re-elected auditors.

A vote of thanks proposed by Mr. Kirby to the Chairman concluded the business of the meeting.

HOW ROSS BEAT MCLARNIN

SAVAGE BATTLE FOUGHT

DECISION BOOED BY CROWD

New York, May 28. In a savage battle, Barney Ross, younger and faster, hammered out a decision here to-night over Jimmy McLarnin and regained the world welterweight crown he held for less than four months last year.

The decision was lastly booed by many of the crowd of 35,000 at the Polo Grounds, but there was little doubt among the ringsiders that the Chicago Jewish boy had the edge over the Vancouver Irishman in their third meeting.

There were no knockdowns in the 15 furious rounds, but both bled copiously. Ross's nose bled most of the time. McLarnin took a body beating and his left eyebrow was cut in the eleventh stanza and his right eye was closing after the first few exchanges of blows.

The Irishman's left hooks and right smashes got Ross back repeatedly but the Jewish boy always came back strong, shuffling in constantly though sometimes blindly.

The Associated Press gave Ross 10 rounds, McLarnin four and rated an even, but several of the rounds scored for the challenger were close.

NO HESITATION
Jack Dempsey, the former world heavyweight champion, was the third man in the ring and there was no hesitation in his decision for the Jewish boy.

Ross was a seven to five favourite in the betting because of his prime physical shape and his showing in the previous two battles. Both were well under the welterweight limit, Ross scaling 141 and the Vancouver Irishman 144½ pounds.

It was just the kind of match that turned the customary out in force twice last year—$5,000 saw Ross take the title from "Baby Face" here last May 29, and $5,000 paid to see them battle again September 17, after rain had caused four postponements. Mc-

BAHRAM'S TEST

AGA KHAN WELL REPRESENTED

(Special to "Telegraph")

London, June 3. The Jubilee Derby is likely to break all records regarding attendance.

The great question is: Will Bahram win? It is 35 years since the last odds-on favourite, Cicero, at 4/11 won, but since that race there has never been such a small field.

Bahram, the winner of the Two Thousand Guineas, is attempting the feat, accomplished by only five horses during the past 35 years, of winning both classics.

Fox, who is riding the favourite, thinks that Bahram is a certainty. He says he is the best horse ever.

But whether Bahram wins or not, the Aga Khan, with Bahram and Theft also running, has a better chance of winning the Derby than any other has ever had.

Larnin was victorious in the return engagement, by a split decision.

The victory gave Ross a double title again, as he already is the synthetic junior welterweight champion. He relinquished his world lightweight title last month because of inability to make the 135-pound weight limit, and Tony Canzoneri, the New York youth from whom Ross had taken it, regained the lightweight crown recently by beating Lou Ambers.

The veteran McLarnin indicated in advance that in the event of a loss he and his manager, "Pop" Foster, were about through with the ring. He won the welter crown two years ago from Young Corbett III, now campaigning in the middleweight class, and did not defend it until he met Ross the first time a year later.

Now 30 years old, McLarnin is well fixed financially with probably $250,000 in first class investments. It took him 10 years to win a world title. It was McLarnin who only July 4, 1925, beat Pancho Villa, Filipino world flyweight champion, in a non-title battle. Several days later Villa died as a result of an infection.

Ross, who is 26 years old, has been campaigning as a professional for six years and has lost only three fights while winning 41.

RECORD FOR AGA KHAN THIS YEAR?

BAHRAM AND THE DERBY

Will Bahram, the Aga Khan's favourite for the Derby, satisfy its owner's one particular ambition to-morrow when the famous Epsom Classic is decided?

More than once the Indian prince has expressed the hope that he would one day own a horse good enough to pass through a normal high-class racing career without being beaten.

Last season Bahram was successful in all its five starts and this year it has already won the Two Thousand Guineas, in which it gave a convincing performance and instantly established itself as favourite for to-morrow.

Bahram beat Theft, also belonging to the Aga Khan, and other Derby candidates. Bobsleigh, which has been scratched from the Derby, was favourite for the Two Thousand Guineas but ran fourth.

With Bobsleigh out of the race Bahram has now become a stronger favourite than ever.

SCOT'S TRIUMPH IN U.S. OPEN

1927 INCIDENT RECALLED

Oakmont Country Club, where this year's U. S. Open will be played, was the scene of one of Tommy Armour's greatest exhibitions of golf. It occurred during the Open held there in 1927.

The Scot's great shot came on the 157-yard finishing hole, and after Oakmont's furrowed traps had taken their toll and eliminated such luminaries as Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, and Bill Mehlhorn, leaving Harry Cooper, although 13 over par, leading with a total of 301. Bobby Jones scored a 300.

Armour approached the seventeenth hole needing two strokes to win or a three and a four to tie. After taking a 4 on 17, the best he could

SMITH SCORES DOUBLE CENTURY FOR DERBYSHIRE

London, June 3.

Bowlers gained the ascendancy in the majority of the county cricket matches which were commenced on Saturday and of which five were brought to a definite conclusion on the second day.

Derbyshire, the present leaders of the Championship, were in their best form against Hampshire in the match at Chesterfield, where the hosts won convincingly by an innings and 104 runs after dismissing Hampshire for scores of 140 and 134. D. Smith, the left hander, who showed some brilliant form last season, has quickly got into his stride and a double century by him enabled Derbyshire to declare at 378 for nine wickets. Smith, who had made 203 runs on Saturday, carried his score to 225 before dismissal to-day.

for honours and in the match against Kent at Bradford, they secured their fourth victory in six matches, by two wickets.

"Tich" Freeman again took principal honours with his slow bowling and captured thirteen wickets during the match.

After Kent had compiled a total of 182, Yorkshire were dismissed for 132 runs. Freeman taking six wickets for 47. Kent were unable to take advantage of the first innings lead and were sent back a second time for 140 runs. Macaulay had five wickets for 40 and Verity five for 52.

Herbert Sutcliffe it was who came to the rescue of Yorkshire with a brilliant 110 runs scored against the Kent bowlers even with Freeman in his best form. Yorkshire won with two wickets to spare scoring 192 for eight. Freeman had seven wickets for 108 runs in the second innings.

After a series of reverses Sussex, are slowly coming into their own and in their match against Somerset at Hove they won by an innings and 85 runs.

With a score of 321 runs Sussex declared their first innings closed with nine wickets down. John Langridge was top scorer with 168 to his credit. Andrews took five of the wickets for 74 runs.

Somerset were dismissed for 104 and then, following on, for 132.

SECOND INNINGS COLLAPSE

Worcestershire, playing at Stourbridge, were beaten by Leicestershire by seven wickets.

The home county had first innings but Geary was too deadly and the last wickets fell for 111 runs. The former Test bowler took five for 33. Leicestershire replied with a score of 137 runs.

A collapse in their second innings which realised but 77 runs left Worcestershire in a hopeless position and Leicestershire scored 53 runs for the loss of three wickets. Smith captured five for 32 when Worcestershire were dismissed cheaply in their second venture.

Glamorgan have been playing consistent cricket this season and at Llanelli they beat Northamptonshire by an innings and 109 runs.

J. C. Clay is again bearing the brunt of the attack and in this match he took nine wickets for 54 runs when Northants were dismissed for 137 in their first innings. In their second he captured another six for 32 in an innings which yielded 103 runs.

Glamorgan had scored 349 runs in their innings in which Lewis contributed 101 runs.—Reuter.

KING LEVINSKY SCORES

VICIOUS SCRAP IN TORONTO

Toronto, May 27.

King Levinsky, who has become the terror of the second raters since Max Baer knocked him out in the second round last December, hammered out a decision here to-night in 10 rounds from Hans Birke of Germany.

The Chicago one time fish peddler won every round but his roughness brought boos from the crowd.

It was a vicious scrap all the way through. Levinsky hit the German in the fifth before the latter left his chair and both continued battling after the bell had sounded.

It was their second meeting in a little more than a month as the King-fish technically knocked out Birke in the fourth stanza on April 15 at Denver. It was his eighth knockout in nine starts.

Steve Hamas' proudest souvenir of his losing fight against Max Schmeling at Hamburg is a solid-silver cigarette case, bearing the monogram "W" and the crest of Germany's former imperial family.

Badly beaten, his face feeling, as he put it, "like a balloon," the American fighter was sitting in the lobby of his hotel the day after the bout when a messenger approached and handed him a small package.

In it was the case, together with a postcard-size photograph of the former Crown Prince, Wilhelm of Germany. On the back, written in the handwriting of the man America called "Little Willie" during the war years, was the note:

"Mr. Hamas: Will you kindly accept this small token from me. I greatly admired your brave fight, Wilhelm."

TILDEN'S TENNIS TOUR UNDER WAY

NEW FACES INCLUDED IN TROUP THIS SEASON

New York.

Another "Tilden tour" is under way, the annual swing around the United States, touching almost every city large enough to furnish a suitable arena for covered-court play.

The cast of characters changes a little each year. But always whether playing the star individual role of not, William T. Tilden II is in there, whacking away at those tennis balls, seeing that the court gets swept off and that the lights are properly adjusted, and in general running the show.

After all, it's his show. He started it—and from the way he keeps rolling along it looks as though he may still be around to finish it!

The world's ranking amateur doubles team of 1934—supreme in Davis cup challenge round play, conqueror at Wimbledon, Forest Hills and practically every other major battleground—bowed in before 14,800 customers at Madison Square Garden and found Big Bill and his tall protegee, Ellsworth Vines, too much for them in a truly epic five-set battle.

There is no telling, of course, how much difference will be seen in the play of these ex-amateur tandem champions—George Lott and Lester Rollo Stiefen—when they get more accustomed to indoor play in huge arenas and on the special canvas court.

But it was undeniably a feather in the cap of pro tennis in general and of Bill Tilden in particular that this pair which had been so all-conquering against the world's best amateurs should be turned back in its first rally into the pro field.

The 42-year-old Tilden—who, it is estimated, has been getting in an average of close to 300 tennis-playing days a year for the last 15 years—not only proved his right to continue in this fast company but to many was the dominant star of the galaxy.

The press-box boys, who seem never to cease wondering at the longevity, agility and stamina of Big Bill, were in fact speculating that if the time ever comes when Tilden feels unable to take his place as a singles star he can still go on for another decade or so as a top-class doubles performer, leaning heavily on his amazing knowledge of court tactics.

Promoter Bill O'Brien, chuckling over the more than satisfactory turnout at the Garden, was sure the Tilden tour of 1935 would equal or surpass those of other years.

Karel Kozeluh, the Czechoslovakian, Hans Nusslein, the German, Vinny Richards, Henri Gochet, and Vines has been the respective "new faces" as these barnstormers have grown to annual stature, and Bill thinks the enterprise has done all right in picking up the Lott-Stiefen duo for the current jaunt.

But he still insists he'll have Fred Perry and Haden Jacobs in the fold before they move outdoors.

This year's tour embraces almost 80 cities, from eastern seaboard to west coast, from Toronto to Atlanta. It probably will get pretty weary, and on those 42-year-old legs of William Tilden especially.

But who was there with the shots on that opening night!

BRILLIANT GOLF FEAT

BY M. COURLAY AT WORPLESDON

FOUR STROKES TO GOOD

London, May 9.

Worpleston women's open meeting yesterday saw one score so brilliant that its perpetrator really had no cause to crave for the strong right arm of a male partner such as would have supported her in the annual mixed foursomes there. Miss Gourlay was round in 73, and even allowing for the difference in tees, that is a total that a mixed pair might be justly satisfied with.

The difference in tees was chiefly apparent at the short holes, which had shrunk conveniently from a spoon to a No. 4 or even less. At the longer holes there was not more than half a dozen to ten yards difference, so that it was really good golf which meant that players who expected to win the scratch prize were seldom obliged to take wood for their second. Limber shafts have done much for many, but in the case of Miss Gourlay the extra length which she seems to have acquired comes from a whippy hickory-shafted driver, a club of dreams with which she drove supremely well.

She started off by putting a No. 4 second shot some three yards from the first hole, and sinking the putt for a 3. The next incident, since you cannot call faultless figures that, was bunkering her second shot at the 5th and getting out too strongly over the green. Many apparently good seconds finished over there yesterday, for there was a wind, with plenty of weight in it, blowing up that fairway. At the 8th a glorious drive left her no more than a little pitch and run, which scooped at the new bunkers closing up the green, climbed the hill, and gave chance of a birdie 3. Miss Gourlay took it, and in spite of a 5 at the 9th was out in 35.

THREE PUTTS

The 10th was the only hole of the round to cost her 3 putts, and after that she went on again without semblance of a shot dropped until the 15th. There her 3rd was bunkered beside the green, but she got out grandly and holed the putt for the regulation 5. At the 16th the long putt nearly dropped for a 2, and the position was that she needed two 4's for a 72.

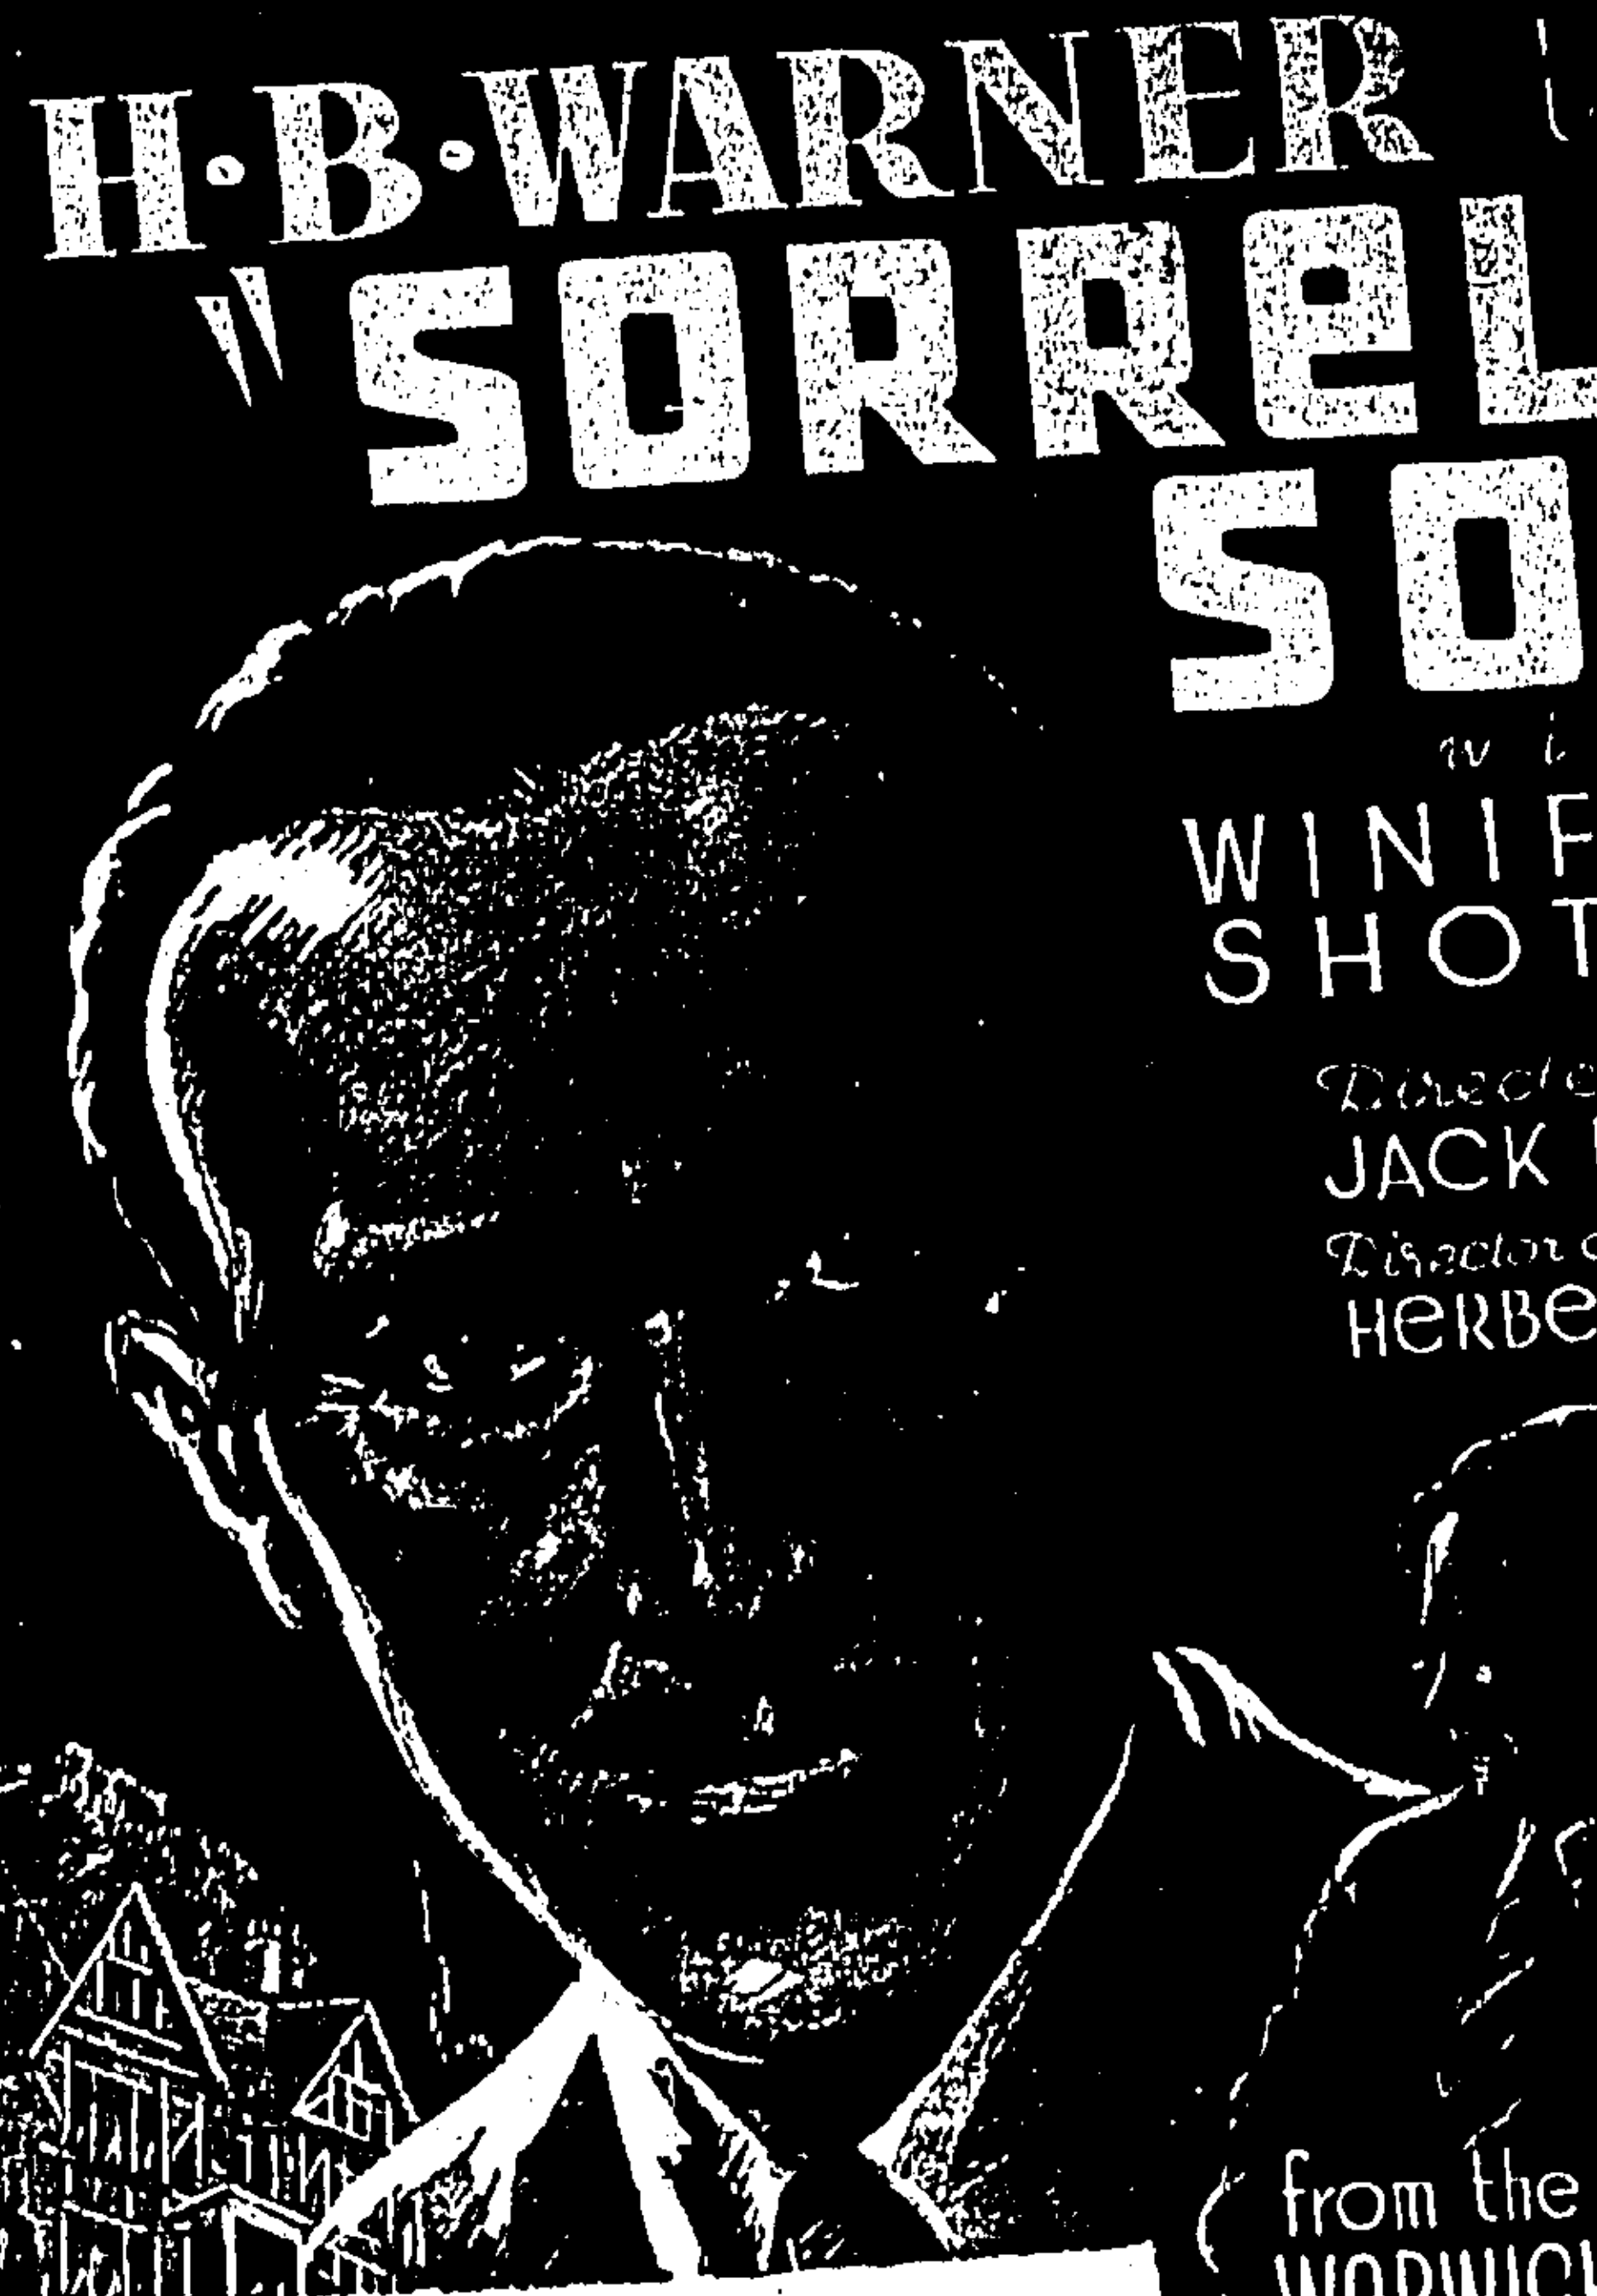

An immense drive to the 17th boded well, a missed second boded badly, and a mashie niblick hit on the head still worse. This was terrifying. But somehow the shot, having run all round the cushions, came to rest on the upper outskirts of the green. Miss Gourlay played a clever run up, and there was 5. She hit a fine drive to the 18th, but it was slightly to the right and there was no circumventing the guardian bunker; it must be carried and no mistake about it, and with wood, for the wind was strong. She played the sort of rare shot which does merit the word superb, carried the left-hand end of the bunker with just the right amount of drift to take her well into the green, and put the approach putt to the very lip. Home in 38.

Her card, a record for the present course, read:—
3, 4, 4, 3, 6, 4, 3, 3, 5—35 out;
4, 5, 5, 3, 4, 5, 3, 5, 4—38 home—73.

Mrs. Douglas Fish's 77 came second, Mrs. Peel's 79 third, for Mrs. Clarke, out in 36, broke down on the homeward way, so did Miss Halsted, after getting out in 37, and Mrs. Kennedy and Miss Rabbidge in 38.

who is in the British team to visit New Zealand and Australia this autumn. Here is a swing which seems to leave no loophole for mistakes. But at first bunkers dogged her, and then the putts went in only to come out again. The course was in splendid order, the greens perfection. And so were the surrounding gardens. All the golfing world knows them in autumn colouring; they are no less beautiful in spring. Nor will June 22, when Great Britain plays France there, see anything less lovely, if the activity to be seen in the flower borders beside the 16th fairway bears flower.

FLOOD AND DROUGHT

SHANSI PARCHED, BUT FOOCHEW AWASH

Taiyuenfu, June 4. The whole province of Shansi has been rainless since early this year. In many districts, especially in Southern Shansi, numerous crops of grains are showing signs of withering. A panic has been created among the farmers, who fear that a serious drought situation is developing. Some inland water courses are fast drying up, causing considerable hardship among the local populace which depends on them for water supplies.—Central News.

CITY FLOODED

Foocchow, June 4. At least two-fifths of the city of Foocchow is submerged in flood water from one to eight feet, as a result of the continuous rising of the Minkiang River, which has been swelled by heavy rains.

Native junk and sampans are capable of sailing in the low-lying streets. Trade activities have been almost brought to a complete standstill, while thousands of sufferers are clamouring for immediate relief. They have abandoned their homes, which entirely or partly collapsed, and are seeking temporary shelter in other quarters of the city.

The local authorities are organising emergency relief with the co-operation of Red Cross bodies and charitable organisations.—Central News.

HELPING HAND FOR U.S. FARMERS

Washington, June 3. President Roosevelt has approved the Farm Credit Act of 1935, providing for the reduction of the interest rate on all federal bank loans through the National Farm Loan Associations, from 4 1/4 to 3 1/2 per cent. for the year beginning July 1, and to 4 per cent. for the two years thereafter. Interest on loans made directly by Land Banks will be reduced to 4 per cent. and 4 1/4 per cent. respectively for these periods, compared with the original 5 to 6 per cent. rates.—Reuter.

PRINCESS ROYAL'S ILLNESS

MUST BE OPERATED ON FOR GOITRE

London, June 3. It was announced to-day that the Princess Royal is shortly to undergo an operation. A bulletin issued to-day states that the Princess has been suffering for some time from ophthalmic goitre. Although Her Royal Highness has improved under treatment, a complete cure is not being effected thereby, and it has therefore been decided to treat the thyroid gland by operation.—Reuter Special.

City Totally Destroyed

STATEMENT ISSUED ON QUETTA QUAKE

London, June 3. The Quetta earthquake was the subject of a brief statement in the House of Commons by the Secretary for India, Sir Samuel Hoare, who, deeply regretted to say that the reports he had received of this appalling disaster unfortunately fully bore out what had appeared in the press. He was grieved to state that the whole city of Quetta had been destroyed.

All houses in the civil area have been razed to the ground, except Government House, which is partially standing in ruins. One quarter of the cantonment area is destroyed, the remaining three-quarters being slightly damaged, but inhabitable. The bodies of about 4,500 members of the Indian civil population have been recovered.

It is feared that about 20,000 still remain buried in the debris. The total of Indian casualties outside the city of Quetta is at present unknown. The total of British deaths is about 200.

RATION SYSTEM

The situation is well in hand, but as nearly all the subordinate Police Officers have been killed, it has been necessary to ask for military assistance. The Western Command has assumed control of the situation and is rationing the population.

Communications by rail and road are reported intact. The civil land telegraphic line has been restored. In order to deal effectively with the situation, the General Officer Commanding has been authorised to declare martial law in the City and cantonment at his discretion.

A special Earthquake Department has been set up in the India Office, London, dealing with inquiries. Relatives of individuals injured are being informed of the latest news of their condition by officers of that department.

There is no truth in reports that Quetta is to be blown up and abandoned. Rescue work is continuing and will be continued to the last in the hope of rescuing survivors lying beneath the debris.—British Wireless.

MANY LIVES SAVED

EFFECT OF BRITISH ROAD CONTROL

London, June 3. During a House of Commons debate on the vote for the Ministry of Transport, Mr. Horie Bolsha referred in particular to safety measures taken on the roads. Pedestrian crossings, of which 10,000 had been laid in London within three months, had, he said, undoubtedly been responsible for the saving of life and limb.

It was notable that in London, where the safety measures so far had been chiefly concentrated, there had been a greater percentage of reduction in accidents than in the country as a whole. The speed limit had made for a safer and more agreeable flow of traffic.

The most depressing feature of the accident returns was the large number of children involved, 1,171 of 3,517 pedestrians killed on the roads in 1935 being under 16 years old.

GREEN KERBS

Two departmental committees had been appointed to draw up a curriculum for the teaching of safety in the schools. Undoubtedly many accidents occurred owing to lack of playgrounds for children.

Notices of regulations would, as an experiment, be given this week converting certain streets in Southwark and Paddington into children's play streets. It was intended to erect notices at the end of the streets, and to paint the kerbs with green paint.

The Ministry would do everything possible to provide for this year's unexampled expansion of motoring. In connection with the Government's five-year road plan, programmes had been received from about half of the highway authorities, and further programmes had been received almost daily.—British Wireless.

LIQUIDATOR NAMED

TO WIND UP AFFAIRS OF A.O.F.C.

Peiping, June 4. Judge Helmick, of the American Court, has appointed Mr. Frank Hough, director of the R.C.A. Victor Company of China, liquidator of the American-Oriental Finance Corporation, the American-Oriental Banking Corporation and the Raven Trust Company.

Mr. Hough has been in China for two and a half years. He once served as liquidator of a large business concern in the United States.

Interviewed, he said to-day: "I intend to do everything I possibly can to secure the greatest return for depositors."

Judge Helmick is expected to appoint a trustee for the Asia Realty Company, another of the A.O.F.C. subsidiaries, to-day.—Reuter.

sult of the carnage and wreckage wrought by the earthquake, was contained in a telegram sent to the India Office from the agent of the Government of Baluchistan. The message added that rescue work in the ruins would be continued until the last hope that there might be someone still alive below the debris had been exhausted.—Reuter.
